AMERICAN TROOPS CAPTURE PALERMO

SPEAKER HERE LAUDS RAILWAY WAR SERVICE

Transportation Record Is Reviewed at District Traffic Club Meeting.

By LOREN W. TIBBALS

The manner in which the railroads accepted General Order No. 1 of the office of defense transportation—ordering strict conservation of rail equipment for the transportation of war materials—and the success that was achieved in its application was outstanding evidence of cooperation of the nation's rail system with the government's war pattern," G. R. Littell of Cleveland told 100 members and guests of the Central Ohio Traffic club at the Marion Country club last night.

Mr. Littell, formerly affiliated with the Baltimore & Ohio railroad system for 47 years as terminal freight agent at Cleveland, is assistant director of the office of defense transportation, division of railway transport, with headquarters in Cleveland. He joined the staff of ODT one year ago.

Traffic Club Meets

The occasion for his remarks was the summer meeting of the Traffic club, an organization composed of key representatives of railroads and industrial concerns in the Marion area. Its membership is confined chiefly to Ashland, Mansfield, Galion, Marion, Bucyrus, Upper Sandusky, Delaware, Kenton, Lima and Findlay. A number of its members live outside of this immediate area but in their line of work are active within the area.

Other speakers included Col. C. B. Shaffer, commanding officer of the Marion Engineer Depot, and Major Philip E. Gruber, commanding officer of the Scioto Ordnance Plant.

Continuing his talk to the railway phase of ODT activities alone Mr. Littell reviewed the success of various ODT general orders. He said, "While it is true that the application of ODT Order No. 1 has been made in a very commendable manner by the railroads we must not lose sight of the fact that the needs of our railroad equipment will be greater in the near future than in the past. Therefore we must not relax in any of our efforts to keep cars and materials moving. There is also room for further extension of rail-truck coordination plans and whenever an opportunity presents itself for rail-truck coordination which would lend itself to the conservation of equipment of both services, the office of defense transportation is very much interested.

Orders Reviewed

He went over the list of general orders issued by ODT since its establishing, reviewing ones most important at this time. Summaries of his remarks follow:

No. 7—Movement of traffic in railroad tank cars—The outstanding work of the tank car section of the ODT and those interested in its success, coupled with the outstanding miracles performed by the railroads with the cooperation of the shipper have been wholly responsible for the success in transporting fuels, chemicals etc. by tank car. "The application of this order by all those concerned is a monument to the transportation of our country," Mr. Littell said.

No. 16—Freight shipments via ports in the United States—"A fine job was done by the transportation industries in World War I, but the conditions in the present war are entirely different and with the experience obtained in the first war, transportation companies have been able to set up a system of which all concerned can be justly proud. The work of truck and rail transportation agencies has made possible a steady flow of war materials to virtually every fighting front.

"In summarizing these orders, which are directly railroad orders and which have been outstanding factors in transporting by rail in support of our war effort, let me say that the wonderful showing made in most cases would not have been possible were it not for the individual and loyal support of industry. The orders were accepted in a spirit of cooperation and industry's effort is largely re-

GIVEN SLIGHT CHANCE TO LIVE

McCarrens of Plain Dealer Wounded by Assailant Who Then Kills Self.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 23 — John S. McCarrens, general manager of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, today was given "one out of four chances to survive" bullet wounds inflicted by an assailant who later killed himself.

Dr. O. A. Weber removed a bullet from McCarrens' abdomen and reported the 74-year-old publisher was in critical condition.

He said he had "one out of four chances to survive."

McCarrens was shot in the left wrist, right arm and lower left abdomen yesterday by Herbert L. Kobrak, 55-year-old native of Hungary, who had been active for several years in Cleveland's foreign language publishing field. Detective Inspector Frank W. Story said.

The shooting occurred in McCarrens' fourth floor office in The Plain Dealer building in downtown Cleveland where the gunman had made an appointment to see the publisher about starting a foreign language graphic newspaper.

Kobrak Dies

Kobrak, a revolver bullet wound in his right temple, died 38 minutes later.

Two notes were found in Kobrak's clothing, one addressed to police, and the other to "Gentlemen of the Press," Inspector Story said, indicating he had planned to kill McCarrens several months ago.

Enroute to Charity hospital, McCarrens told associates Kobrak had come to him for financial help and that he had helped him previously. Shortly after Kobrak entered McCarrens' office, Miss Florence Anthony, a secretary, said she heard four shots in quick succession and then, a moment later, a fifth shot.

Mr. McCarrens opened the door of his office and came out. He said, 'I've been shot—a crazy man just shot me.' Then he walked into the office of Joseph Madigan, circulation manager, and collapsed."

The letter found on Kobrak said he had worked more than 20 years ago for the Chicago Tribune, Chicago Herald, St. Louis Globe Democrat and the Western Watchman.

Came to U. S. in 1908

He came to America from Hungary in 1908, and lived for a time in Lorain, O. He started work on a Cleveland foreign language newspaper as advertising solicitor 20 years ago, and became general manager of the now defunct Consolidated Press and Printing Co., publisher of foreign language papers.

Dr. Ervin H. Bulgar, Consolidated president until its dissolution in 1939 said "he tried to murder me in 1939 and I had him arrested."

McCarrens, who is president of the Forest City Publishing Co., which operate both The Plain Dealer and Cleveland News, is an ANPA director, after serving two terms as the association's president. He joined The Plain Dealer as advertising manager in 1914 and became general manager in 1932.

Small Gifts from U. S. Help Keep Beaten People Hopeful

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23—By air and by mysterious underground channels the enslaved peoples of Europe are getting regular reminders—in a form more substantial than leaflets—that the United States is rich and generous and aims to do something about their plight.

Sewing kits, seeds, soap, and packets of tea, bouillon and chocolate are being dropped by parachute or smuggled past Nazi barriers, each gift carrying a message of encouragement to the downtrodden for whom such things are scarce, costly or unobtainable.

Office of war information officials today lifted some of the secrecy surrounding these deliveries into occupied lands and even enemy countries. They are sent to neutral lands as well, but are distributed openly there, as visual representations of a friendly United States.

Devices Ingenious

Ingenuity of a high order went into the designing of printing and duplicating devices to help the underground movements of Europe in waging their own propaganda warfare against the axis overlords.

These are built compact and light, for greater ease in spiriting them to remote spots or new hideouts. They are quickly assembled and taken apart without tools—an advantage in places where the gestapo may drop in unexpectedly. They are easy to operate, for the benefit of amateurs. They include an all-aluminum printing press, set up in four minutes; a miniature typesetting outfit; a 12½-ounce mimeograph machine which can turn out 700 copies an hour; and a substantial flatbed mimeograph which weighs 22 pounds but can be carried in a briefcase.

On each gift is the American flag, a brief, friendly greeting from this country, or a picture symbolizing American armed might. In subjugated lands the flag and the message are concealed inside the cellophane jacket.

Ironic Message

"Heil Hitler, Heil Hunger" is the message on a tiny self-inking rubber stamp which can be hidden in a man's hand while he stamps the slogan on cafe menus, paper money—or even on a gauleiter's shirt front when it comes back from the laundry. "Mort Aux Traitres" ("death to traitors") another reads. These have been widely used in occupied Europe.

"Soap paper," an impregnated paper which lathers quickly, has the added advantage of being a fine printing propaganda in French, Italian and other languages. The not-too-subtle text reads: "From your friends the United Nations. Dip in water—use like soap. Wash off the Nazi dirt."

Sewing kits contain three needles, five pins and 40 yards of thread, packaged with a leaflet headed "to the women of France —a small remembrance from the United States of America."

BRICKER PROCLAIMS WAVE WEEK DATES

In connection with the first anniversary of the founding of the WAVES, Gov. John W. Bricker has proclaimed the week of July 25-31 as WAVE week in Ohio, Chief John J. Dugan, in charge of the Marion naval recruiting sub-station, announced today.

The WAVES were founded in July of 1942 and on Feb. 15, 1943, sub-stations throughout the country were ordered to begin taking enlistments of women between the ages of 20 and 36 for the enlisted personnel of the auxiliary. Before this enlistments for officers were taken.

Members of the organization are thoroughly trained in Navy procedure of all types to replace a man on shore duty for service at sea.

The full text of Governor Bricker's proclamation follows:

Whereas, the demands of this total war against the Axis requires the services of women to serve their country, and

Whereas, the State of Ohio has always assumed its full share of responsibility in every national emergency, and

Whereas, the United States Navy is in urgent need of women between the ages of 20 and 38 to serve as WAVES, and

Whereas, the women of Ohio should take their places with the other women throughout America in the line of duty,

Now, therefore, I, John W. Bricker, governor of the State of Ohio, do hereby proclaim the week of July 25 to 31, WAVE Week, in commemoration of the first anniversary of the establishment of the WAVES and call upon the citizens of this great state to enlighten themselves on the need for service and the opportunities afforded young women by the United States Navy in the WAVES.

20 Get Speed Law Warnings

Twenty persons, violators of the victory speed law, were dismissed with warnings when called before the gas panel of the Marion County Rationing board Wednesday night. The 20, all first offenders, were told they would forfeit their ration cards "for the duration" if called before the board on a second offense. The hearings were held at the ration board office. Twelve violators appeared before the board early in June.

NEW PRICE CONTROL PLANS UNDER STUDY

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23—President Roosevelt said today the administration is considering new plans for price controls and general economic stabilization, but that no ideas have yet been agreed on.

The Chief Executive made this disclosure at a press-radio conference when asked to comment on organized labor's demand that prices be rolled back if labor was to go along with the stabilization program.

The President said the reporter put it badly, that labor had not delivered an ultimatum. He added that labor as well as other groups are in a predicament because food prices generally have not been rolled to levels of last Sept. 15, as called for by congress.

The President then disclosed the administration is working on new plans and that whatever plan is agreed on would have to be put up to congress because it will cost money.

If anyone has any bright suggestions as to how the rollback of prices can be carried out under the present law, he will welcome them, Mr. Roosevelt said.

Recalling that his combined labor, war board had suggested yesterday that prices as well as wages be stablized, he said labor is in a predicament—as well as some of those in the room who have not had their salaries raised. He went on to say that food prices generally have not been put back to September 1942 levels, but that some essential foods have been held fairly level.

When a reporter mentioned that the war food administration had reported plenty of eggs on hand and the office of price administration said an egg shortage existed, the President said it depends on where one lives.

Warning against using generalities in such matters, the President said for example that he had lots of eggs at his Hyde Park, N. Y., farm and that he was actualy selling some.

He then recalled how a cry went up several months ago about a shortage of potatoes and said by the end of the week there were more potatoes than could be used.

REDS SMASH LAST DEFENSE BEFORE OREL

Russians Say Battle for City Cost Nazis 50,000 Dead, 6,000 Prisoners.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, July 23 — Russian forces crashed through the last strongly-fortified link in Orel's northern defenses yesterday on the tenth day of an offensive that has cost the Germans 50,000 killed and 6,000 captured, and closed their pincers tighter about the city despite desperate Nazi counterattacks, a Soviet announcement said today.

Bolkhov, 35 miles above the city, which a Red army column racing down from the north had by-passed while driving to within nine miles northeast of Orel, crumbled before the attackers and its fall "completed the liquidation of strongly fortified districts" in that direction, the Russians said.

Another Column Advances

Another Russian column pounding to within 11 miles of the key German defense city from the east, and a southern column moving up to complete the three-headed drive, beat back Nazi tanks and infantry to continue a steady advance, according to the Soviet announcement.

Altogether, the Russians said gains of four to five miles were registered in the Orel sector yesterday while the Germans lost 2,500 killed and 39 tanks destroyed or captured.

The Russian midnight communique placed German losses in material destroyed or captured in the 10-day Soviet drive at nine hundred planes, 1,148 tanks, 1,602 guns of various caliber, 800 mortars, and 1,400 machineguns.

(The German radio countered with the assertion that the Red army had lost more than 350,000 in dead, wounded or captured since July 15.

Called Greatest Battle

(Terming the struggle "the greatest battle of attrition ever fought," German sources pictured the immensity of the armies facing each other along the Russian front by saying they were made up of 800 divisions — from 7,200,000 to 9,000,000 men "presently engaged" there.)

In the Belgorod sector, 165 miles south of Orel, the Russian announcement said Soviet troops overcame strong German resistance and counterattacks to continue their advances. The bodies of more than 1,000 enemy dead were counted on the field following a two day battle, the Russians said.

OPEN CITY OF ROME ASKED

President Says Allies Hope Axis Will Remove War Installations from Capital.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23—President Roosevelt said today the allies still hope the Germans and Fascists will declare Rome an open city.

The Chief Executive told his press-radio conference the allies had tried for a year or more to have the Italian capital rendered an open city and hence not subject to attack, but that all these efforts had failed.

Discussing the recent air raids on Rome, the President remarked the city contains airports and railroad marshalling yards used to transport guns, troops and ammunition southward. He also said the bombing was to protect American and British lives.

No Word from Pope

The President would not comment on the letter of Pope Pius XII to his vicar general in Rome deploring the bombing. He said he had had no communication from the Pope.

The comment he did make came in response to a question whether Rome should be made an open city.

Mr. Roosevelt said that for more than a year the allies had been anxious to have Rome so declared but that the Italian Fascist leaders would not do it. He described Rome as an important military center, with airports close by and actually in the city, and because it makes munitions and has immense marshalling yards for transport of troops and guns to southern Italy. He said the allies had used every argument to have these installations removed and the city declared an open one but that it did not work.

Still Hopes for Results

The Chief Executive then added he still hoped it would be so made.

Touching on the invasion of Sicily, he said it was clear that the allied troops were in great danger by the influx of guns and other military equipment from the Rome area.

The more the allies could keep the military traffic from operating between Rome and the south the better it would be for the allies, he commented. He described the Rome raid as very successful and said he would not go into the quid pro quo on the question, meaning retaliation for similar raids on allied cities, because he believed that was not the essential thing.

He did say, however, that the Germans had destroyed about 4,000 churches, hospitals and libraries in Britain and there was no compunction there.

He then repeated that it was not a question of retaliating in bombing Rome, but that sometimes it becomes necessary to save lives and that such raids are inevitable and necessary.

CONDITION FAVORABLE

The condition of Russell Gulliford of Marion, burned when gasoline spilled from an open container against the exhaust of an auto in which he was riding Tuesday, was reported as fairly good by City hospital today. That of Paul Mitchell of near Caledonia, driver of the car, who was burned also, was described as good.

Anonymous Donor Boosts Prizes in Stamp Sale Drive

Thanks to a donor who does not wish his or her identity known, there will be three additional awards in the Star's "little merchant" war savings stamp sale when the campaign ends at the close of the month.

Donor of the award money—$5—who signed the letter accompanying the gift "A Star Booter," asks that the money be distributed in prizes of $2.50, $1.50 and $1. The letter states: "I have read about the work your carriers are doing in this bond drive. It seems a pity to me that there is but one prize. Therefore I wish you to accept the enclosed five dollars to distribute in prizes. I wish you success in your 'Little Salesmen' bond work."

Total sales for the week closing Thursday amounted to $667.65. In top place for the week is Dan Smith of 701 Windsor street with $100 in sales. Dan is the carrier on Route 81.

Winner No. 1 for the month so far is Gene Cooper of 518 East Church street, carrier of Route 33, and in second place is Ashley Hoover of 312 Summit street, carrier of route 77. Bill Trafzer of 489 McKinley place, carrier of Route 74 is in third place.

The goal is $1 worth of war savings stamps per month per customer. To the carrier coming nearest to equallying this mark or to the one surpassing it by the greatest percentage, Kline's department store will present a $25 bond.

UNION CO. MAN AND WIFE END LIVES

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, July 23—Less than 20 hours after his wife had taken her life by hanging herself from a poster bed, Ray Johnson, 42, superintendent of the southern division of the Union county highway department, fatally wounded himself with a .22 caliber target pistol in his home here today.

His body was found by relatives about 9:45 this morning after a Marysville funeral director, who had gone to the Johnson home to make arrangements for the funeral of Mrs. Johnson, had been unable to arouse anyone. The body was found in the bathroom on the second floor, Union county authorities reported.

The body of Mrs. Johnson was found about 4:30 yesterday afternoon by her son, Eddie, 14, upon his return from carrying a paper route.

Dr. J. M. Foster, Union county coroner, returned verdicts of suicide in both deaths. He set the time of Mrs. Johnson's death at about 2:30 yesterday afternoon and estimated Mr. Johnson shot himself shortly after 8 o'clock this morning.

Relatives of the couple said both had been in ill health for several months.

Mrs. Floyd Argo of Marysville, wife of Johnson's half brother, took Mr. Johnson to his home about 8 o'clock this morning so that he could shave and clean up, authorities were told.

Mr. Johnson was working with a crew of highway workers on roads in the southern part of the county at the time set by the coroner for Mrs. Johnson's death.

Surviving besides the one son at home is a daughter, Mrs. Edwina Schneider, 19, of Columbus.

PATTON SENDS YANKS TO CITY IN RAPID DRIVE

[BULLETIN]

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 23—Reuters recorded a Berlin radio report today that British troops had broken through the main German lines west of the Catania plain.

• • •

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 23—American forces, driving forward in a move to clean up the westward end of Sicily, have captured the island capital of Palermo on the north coast.

Capture of the city represented a lightning advance for the forces of Lieut. Gen. George S. Patton Jr., which only yesterday were reported 30 miles south of Palermo.

Thousands of Italian forces were trapped by the emergence of the allied spearhead upon the north Sicilian coast.

By the capture of Palermo Italy's sixth largest city, the allies gained dominance of the Tyrrhenian sea, the water approach to the western coast of Italy.

The axis was now being compressed into an area of northeastern Sicily little larger than Cap Bon where their Tunisian forces were destroyed last May.

The main American forces, despite the sweep over western Sicily, were about 30 miles south of San Stefano Di Camastra on the north shore, where they could be brought to bear upon this remaining battle line.

San Stefano Di Camastra north of Enna, is connected by a major highway with the Leonforte area northeast of Enna.

Palermo, which has a normal peacetime population of more than 300,000, is situated some 30 miles from the western tip of the island and is the principal seaport.

By driving through to the north coast to capture the city the American forces effectively cut Sicily into two parts, sealing the avenue of escape for axis troops trapped in the west.

(The Morocco radio said this morning axis troops had abandoned Marsala and Trapani at the western tip of Sicily and were withdrawing eastward.)

Allied Communique

An official announcement said the Americans entered Palermo at 10 a. m. yesterday.

(The fall of the city was announced in a special communique which said a large section of the Italian garrison had surrendered, according to an Algiers radio broadcast heard by The Associated Press.

(The broadcast said the Italian 26th division had surrendered. It added the British Eighth army still was engaging in a bitter battle for Catania. In another broadcast, Algiers relayed what it called "unconfirmed reports" at allied headquarters that allied parachute forces had been landed north of Catania while the Germans rushed up reinforcements by air.

(Dispatches from London said the remainder of the Italian forces defending western Sicily could be expected to give up quickly in the face of the American sweep. It was estimated axis forces there might have totaled 100,000 or more at the start of the invasion, including two army divisions, three coastal divisions, and many thousands of other troops.

(In its daily communique, Rome reported a withdrawal of Italian forces in western Sicily.)

British Make Gains

As the Americans fanned out, bringing three-fifths of Sicily under allied control, the British Eighth army continued to make steady gains against stubborn German-Italian defenses on the battle-littered plain south of Catania. North of Catania the enemy was digging in among the foothills of Mount Etna for a last-ditch stand.

The Americans in the west moved with astonishing speed—some 60 miles in three days ending Wednesday. Their commander, General Patton, called it better than the Nazis ever had done in their most favored moment.

The wilting Italians saw their front lashed to ribbons by the bayonets of charging American infantry. Breakthroughs were widened and deepened with amazing rapidity by thundering squadrons of tanks and lighter armor.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

HALLORAN smiled delightedly at Dicky's raillery. Then he looked at me with keen scrutiny.

"I'll do my best," he said.

"I know you will," Dicky replied heartily. "And now, dear, I'll be running along. Give me a ring at this number"—he looked at his key "1718, as soon as you're through here. Just say 'I'm through,' and I'll understand. Good-bye now."

He gave my arm an affectionate little pat, and with a nod to Halloran went out of the room. The make-up man's eyes were so puzzled, as he looked at me, that I hurried into the explanation which I knew was due him.

Madge Explains

"As you know," I said, "my father is an official of the secret service. There is a woman coming to the hotel this morning whom he wishes me to watch. The woman knows my face, therefore my father wishes me to be completely disguised. He thinks the role of a chambermaid will be the easiest for me to take, and will enable me to keep watch on the woman. When you have made me up, the housekeeper of the hotel will drill me in mannerisms."

I turned to the chair over which the housekeeper had draped the uniform which I was to wear.

"Here is my uniform," I said. "Would you prefer that I put it on before or after you make me up?"

He walked to the chair, held the garments up and appraised them.

"Please put them on before I go to work on you," he said. "That is, all but the cap. You will have to adjust that after you have your wig on."

I picked up the clothing and turned toward the bathroom.

Will Change Quickly

"I'll change quickly," I said. "There's no need to hurry," he rejoined. "I have to lay out my things. May I use this table?"

"I think my father had it put here especially for your use," I said. "It is not the usual article of hotel furniture."

"That was thoughtful of him," he commented absently, and I saw that he already was caught up in what was to him as much artistry as that of the man who paints a portrait.

And it was a portrait indeed, into which, with infinite pains, he transformed me in the hour which followed. With odd devices he changed the contour of my face, and the shape of my ears; made up my face until it was criss-crossed with seamed wrinkles, and tried first one gray wig after another until he found one which, as he said, "belonged" to my face. Then he fitted it down, with strips of something that felt like glued cloth, but which were virtually invisible.

I sighed in sympathy with Georges, for I knew that later I would have to go through the same painful process of having the wig detached from my head. But when I looked in the mirror at Halloran's direction after he had finished with me, I gave a cry of amazement.

Completely Unrecognizable

I did not know myself, and I was sure that nobody who ever had seen me, no matter how close to me, would ever recognize me.

For in the mirror was reflected a toil-worn weather-beaten woman of at least fifty years, with gray hair neatly arranged, and with a certain friendly expression in her face. Only her eyes were familiar to me, and when I turned around, I saw Halloran looking at me with a worried expression.

"You've done a marvelous job!" I told him. "I don't even know myself, so surely nobody else will know me."

"It's all right," he conceded grudgingly; "all except the eyes. I could have done something with them if I'd had all day to work on them, and I don't want to put dark glasses on you. That always looks a bit phony."

Solves the Problem

He considered the problem soberly for a minute as he adjusted the cap upon my wig at just the right angle. Then he gave his solution of the problem:

"I'll put something on your eyes to make the lids look reddened," he decided at last. "That will make it natural for you to keep them half closed as if they hurt you. But remember, don't look anybody squarely in the face. You see, my dear lady, anyone who once has looked at our eyes would never forget them."

If the compliment had not been so sincerely uttered, I would have been annoyed at it. As it was, I simply said "Thank you," appreciatively, and then Halloran began to put his things back into his bag.

"I wish," he said, "that Mr. Graham could come down here and look at you. I'd like his opinion of the job. Would it be possible for you to call him and ask him to come down?"

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Chemistry of Plant Life

1. "Why are green fruits acid. Why are they harmful?"

1. The greatest manufacturer of food stuffs on earth is the plant. It is to the plant's interest to manufacture good foods. If the fruit is good, an animal will eat it and spread the seed far and wide. If the leaves are succulent, an animal will eat them and produce from them fertilizer in its intestines. The plant takes carbon dioxide from the air, water from the soil, and energy from the sun's rays and manufactures food.

The first and simplest compounds formed by the plant from carbon dioxide and water are formaldehyde and acids. The green fruit containing these acids, then, is sour. Then green apple is made up of hard roughage and causes cramps if eaten; that is the only way it is harmful. But as the plant goes on ripening, it combines molecules of formaldehyde until it produces sugar.

The acids are transformed into grape sugar which, under the influence of the sun and inside the skin of the fruit, combine to form malt sugar, which in turn forms dextrin and then, starch. The fruit is then in its most edible form. Later it forms cellulose from the starch and becomes dry and tough.

2. "Are women more sensitive to pain than men?"

2. One of the greatest needs of the modern physician is an instrument to measure pain. All we can do now is take the patient's word for it as to how bad the pain is. At the Mayo Clinic, I understand, they have been working on a pain meter which records responses from the skin. (But nothing has been devised to record deep pain.)

The skin meter is put on like a blood pressure band. Inside the band is a metal grating. The subjects of the test thought they were just having their blood pressure taken, because if they thought their pain sensitivity was being tested, psychologic reaction would enter in. As the band tightened, the grating pressed the skin. Ultimately every person objected that something was hurting. The woman felt the pain at 90 to 120. The men, on the average, did not object until the pressures were 150 to 180. So we must conclude the women were more sensitive to pain than the men.

3. Does it hurt a baby's eyes to face a flashlight camera?"

3. The person who asked this question has been told that flashlights would cause cataract, especially in children. There is no foundation for such a belief. Long exposure to a high degree of infra-red or ultra-violet light is the only form of light or heat which will cause cataract. Exposure to very bright light paralyzes the retinal tissue as in snow blindness. But the short exposure of the flashlight does no harm.

QUESTION AND ANSWERS

M. I.: How could you tell if you were getting tuberculosis? What would be the main symptoms and do they always show up? What is meant by the skin test?

Answer: The most important point to realize about tuberculosis is that it may advance without any symptoms or warning. The earliest symptoms are afternoon fatigue, afternoon fever, slight, steady loss of weight, spitting blood, chronic cough and pleurisy—but all too frequent none of them show up. The skin tuberculin test will detect the disease, but only in childhood. Every adult of twenty should have a chest X-ray, which detects 98 per cent of cases.

Political Breeze Caresses Brows of Ohio Congressmen

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23 — Political winds are blowing about the heads of Ohio members of congress.

Home during the recess ending Sept. 14, they are trying to learn firsthand from their constituents which way those winds are likely to go in 1944.

The state is more pivotal than ever because it will figure in the presidential race as well as the important congressional contests not to mention gubernatorial and other statewide elections

Ohio Republicans in the house are backing Gov Bricker for the GOP nomination for president Senator Robert A Taft, a leading candidate in 1940, has said he is for Bricker Senator Harold H Burton is mum on politics in the face of considerable talk he is in line for the presidential nomination

Taft Not Eliminated

Taft's indorsement of Bricker does not eliminate Taft from discussion of prospective nominees There are many leaders who suggest him as a strong candidate particularly if victory comes before election time

But aside from guesses as to Taft and Burton, Bricker remains the first choice of Ohio Republicans in the house

This raises the question of his successor as governor. Among those mentioned here is representative-at-large George Bender of Cleveland Friends report he is interested in the governorship, although he hasn't hinted he is ready to enter that race

In recent years, Representative Thomas A Jenkins of Ironton, dean of Ohio Republicans in the house has been mentioned as a prospective candidate for governor, but private conversations among his colleagues indicate strongly he has other things in mind He might be a candidate for Republican floor leader in the house if his party gained the majority and the present leader, Joe Martin of Massachusetts, became speaker Jenkins, one of the oldest members of the house in point of service, is a member of the important ways and means committee.

Sensational Possibilities.

Both Jenkins and Bender also have been suggested as candidates for the senatorial nomination, but it is doubtful if either would want to oppose Senator Taft who is up for renomination next year

In the congressional races, the Democrats are primed for a stiff battle to regain seats lost in the last election At that time they had 11 seats They lost all but three, the survivors being Representatives Robert Crosser, Michael Kirwan and Michael Feighan.

Further Gas Limitation Found Unneeded in Ohio

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, July 23—Charles H. Jones, state commerce director, said today a committee named by Gov Bricker to study the gasoline situation in Ohio found additional rationing was "not justified now or in the predictable future."

The committee composed of petroleum production and marketing men, transportation and hauling representatives, and agricultural experts made its report at the request of the governor for up-to-date information on the relation between the state position and that of the eastern seaboard where rationing is more stringent.

Federal officials in Washington said recently midwestern rations might be reduced.

Jones said all members were agreed that if military requirements necessitated reduction of gasoline rations, the cut should be national instead of sectional

State Bridge Board To Redeem Due Bonds

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, July 23—The bridge commission announced today it would redeem all bonds maturing this year on four state-owned toll spans, despite, vehicular travel curtailment resulting from gasoline and tire rationing

Ray Palmer, commission secretary-treasurer, said sinking funds of three bridges on July 15 were more than adequate to pay off, with interest, bonds maturing next Oct 1.

The sinking fund of $117,734 15 for the fourth bridge, the East Liverpool-Chester, W. Va, span, was $22,140 85 short of the $139,875 due Oct 1 but Palmer said sufficient money would be on hand by that date to meet all obligations

Corn Crop Recovers from Late Planting

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 23—A late-planted corn crop, growing rapidly under the hot mid-summer sun of central plains, is making up for the set-backs received from wet weather and floods this spring, crop reports disclosed today.

King corn is heading for a slam-bang climax this autumn, when the fate of a large part of the acreage will be decided within a relatively few days as the grain's growth races against the first killing frost.

Corn still is behind schedule It hasn't entirely reduced the lag created by planting which was two or three weeks late in important producing areas But since the wet spring weather has been favorable, and the corn has responded with excellent progress

TRACK STAR, GENERAL KILLED

Charles Paddock and Marine Commander Die in Alaskan Plane Crash.

By The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif., July 23—Death in a fiery plane crash has closed the action-crammed career of Capt Charles Paddock of the U S Marines, fabulous figure of the era between 1920 and 1930.

Paddock was killed in line of duty Wednesday near Sitka, Alaska,, with Maj Gen William P Upshur, veteran Marine hero, whom he served as aid, and four others

His death was the third within recent months among the nation's array of outstanding athletes Ens Nile Kinnick, All-America grid star at the University of Iowa, and the country's No 1 athlete in 1939, was killed in the Pacific theater of war last month, and in May Lt Louie Zamperini, who like Paddock wrote track history at the University of Southern California, failed to return from a bombing mission in North Africa

Paddock was the first of the golden boys in the track world

Chunky and barrel-chested, Charlie made up in fighting spirit what he lacked in form He was far from the perfect strider. A bundle of nerves at the start of a race, he was at the exploding point as the gun sent him away He seemed to wobble on his course. But what a finish! It won him many a race and enabled him to set no less than 95 sprint records

A talented writer, Paddock took to newspaper work after he hung up his spikes When he joined the Marines last year he was business manager of the Long Beach Press-Telegram and Sun and the Pasadena Star-News and Post.

Gen Upshur, 51 was commanding general of the Marines in the department of the Pacific.

Gen Upshur had his official residence at Richmond, Va, where his sister, Mrs Elizabeth U. Benson, now lives His widow, Mrs. Lucy M. Upshur, lives at San Francisco

The Navy said the plane in which the six men were traveling was a naval aircraft and that it burned in crashing. The Navy reported

"There were no survivors of the crash and the cause of the accident has not yet been determined Bodies of all passengers and members of the crew have been recovered."

Gen Upshur held the Congressional Medal of Honor, awarded for heroic service in Haiti in 1915. He had seen a great variety of service in the Marine Corps His assignment as commanding general, Department of the Pacific, an administrative office, began early last year

He had been in the Marine Corps since Feb. 1 1904, when he entered as a second lieutenant

First Eagle Ever Raised Artificially Sets New Record

BOULDER, Colo—Smokey, believed to be the only eagle ever hatched in an incubator, and reared by his proud foster parents, Verna Mace and Miss Jane Jolue, to be doing very well is the young Mace and Jolue are graduate students in biology at the University of Colorado.

While previous attempts have been made to hatch eagle eggs in an incubator, as far as known failure always resulted

The extreme care exercised with Smokey, now five weeks old illustrates how difficult it is to raise a wild bird in domestic environment.

The egg which produced Smokey was kept at a constant temperature of 102 degrees Fahrenheit during the incubation period After being hatched the bird was kept for two weeks more in a box with a constant temperature of 90 degrees

Mace explained that eagles are carnivorous but not just any kind of meat is adequate for their diet For the most part Smokey has been fed on white rats, those killed after experiment work in the biology department at the university.

"Luckily for Smokey," said Miss Mace, "you don't need a red ration stamp to get rat meat"

"Eagles must eat some bones to assure development of their own bone structure," Miss Mace elaborated "Then they require animal fur to supply roughage To compensate for lack of exposure to the sun in his early days, we also added a small amount of cod liver oil to Smokey's diet

Jolue and Miss Mace obtained the egg which produced Smokey from a cliff nest in the rugged foothills north of Boulder On a field trip to obtain pictures of eagles at various ages, they watched the nest for about two hours after the adult birds left it When the parents failed to return, the biology students decided to remove the egg which by that time was cold

Nuts have a high nutritive value, being excellent sources of protein and fat, and good sources of minerals," she said "Important for the housewife to remember is the fact that nuts are usually concentrated, and should be used as a part of the meal possibly as a meat substitute not as something added for a hearty meal."

Poll Shows Connally-Smith Act Has Approval of Public

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 23—[illegible]ing of William Green [illegible] Murray, labor union [illegible]th the AFL and the [illegible] started a program to [illegible]m congress those repre[illegible]s and senators who voi[illegible]verride the President's [illegible] the Connally-Smith act. [illegible] members are being advised to call on their congressmen and voice objections in person to the passage of the act which seeks to outlaw strikes in government-held plants and to regulate labor disputes in war-time.

However much the Connally-Smith act may be opposed by leaders of organized labor, its principles have wide support from the general public. Whether labor union leaders seek to change public opinion by appealing to voters familiar with the Conally-Smith measure specifically, or to those who have opinions on the handling of wartime strikes even though they are not familiar with the provisions of the act, they face a difficult task.

Within a few days after the President vetoed the act and congress passed it over his veto, the Institute launched a national survey to determine how the country stands on the measure.

It found approximately one voter in every three sufficiently familiar with the provisions of the act to express an opinion, and the opinion was as follows:

"In general, are you for or against the Connally-Smith Act?"

OF THOSE WITH OPINIONS
For	67%
Against	24
Undecided	9

Those not familiar with the Connally-Smith measure nevertheless have strong views concerning the central issue to which the act applies—strikes.

Surveys have found, for example, that the outlawing of strikes in government-held plants is not only favored by a large vote as a principle but also that the voters of the country believe all wartime strikes in defense plants should be forbidden, not merely strikes in plants taken over by the government.

Two other provisions of the Connally-Smith act are likewise popular in themselves—the "cooling off" period in industrial disputes, and the prohibiting of political campaign contributions on the part of labor unions. The latter was favored by a large majority even before the 1940 Presidential campaign.

Congress vs. Public

It is interesting to compare the vote in congress with the vote of the public on the controversial Connally-Smith measure.

When the President's veto was announced in congress, a majority of the senators and representatives from 36 states who voted on the question of overriding the veto cast their ballots in favor of such action, while from the remaining 12 states the majority who voted were in favor of sustaining the veto.

These 12 states include strong labor union states such as New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and California.

Yet an analysis of public opinion in the 12 states shows that, among voters with opinions on the measure, a majority favor the Connally-Smith Act.

Carl M. Pfeiffer Dies in Hospital at Kenton

KENTON, O., July 23—Carl M. Pfeiffer, 55 who was associated with his brother the late Henry J. Pfeiffer in operation of the historic old Dickson opera house here and later in management of the Ohio and Pastime theaters, died Thursday in Antonio hospital. He never regained consciousness after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage Wednesday while preparing his breakfast.

Surviving are the wife, three daughters, two brothers and a sister. Due to absence of one daughter, Mrs. Coleen Wolfe of Columbus, on a vacation in Michigan funeral arrangements are indefinite but probably will be Sunday. The local police station broadcasted a message over the short wave radio asking aid of Michigan state police in locating the daughter and her husband, who left no forwarding address.

OPA Instructions for Holders of New Gasoline A Books

Now that you have your new basic A gasoline coupons and have learned to fold them so that they resemble somewhat your old book with your name on the front and instructions on the back, you are reminded that before you can use any of the coupons, you must first sign your automobile license number and the state of registration on the face of each coupon, OPA officials at Columbus announced today.

That old tire inspection record which you sent in with your application along with the back of your old "A" book was not returned to you but Part "B" of the application, returned with your new book, properly stamped and initialed by your local ration board, is your new tire inspection record. Keep it with your "A" book.

Union County Ready for Air Raid Test

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, July 23—Union county civilian defense corps members as well as the general public will be ready for the second daylight air raid test ordered for the Dayton area next week because they are one-up on other counties in matter of rehearsals.

The second test was ordered because signals did not come through on the first test except the first signal last Thursday. In Union county however, when no more signals came through, Sheriff Homer S. Roosa started sending out his own signals and the air raid test proceeded without the public and most of the members of the defense corps being any the wiser.

The signals were received properly in Dayton and the test proceeded in Montgomery county according to schedule. In the other counties in the district however, air raid wardens went home after waiting about two hours for more calls. Those counties included Logan, Champaign, Shelby, Miami, Darke, Preble, Clark and Greene.

For Saturday, July 24

WHILE THE energies and faculties are under high stimuli for quick and decisive action yet there may be factors of an adverse nature to cope with, adjust or remedy. Largely it is individual characteristics that offer the major frustrations and annoyance. A tendency to unreliable, tricky, expedient or "smart" tactics also may work for defeat. However there is probability of a sudden, surprising and strange intervention, helping to nullify bad situations. This might be a touch of adventure or romance, perhaps a "hunch."

Those whose birthday it is may be confronted by a year the happiness and good fortune of which depend upon individual sound principles and judgment together with integrity, prudence and regard for the rights and interests of others. This in business as well as in intimate personal relations. There are indications of overbearing egotism, excesses and indulgences which may incite others to antagonism and similar reprisals. There may be temptations to resort to subterfuge, misrepresentations and trickery especially with legal or public authorities or superiors.

A child born on this day while clever and versatile, with skill and ingenuity, may need rigorous control or discipline of self-willed overbearing and over indulgent conduct, nullifying its best success and happiness.

Caterpillar Landing Gear for Planes Devised

Firestone Engineers Develop Improvement for Aircraft.

AKRON, O., July 23—a caterpillar landing gear that will enable airplanes to land on rough ground or on soft or sandy fields has been developed by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co., officials said yesterday.

The new landing equipment will provide airplanes with the same type of traction that the endless tread gives tanks or half-trac vehicles now in use by the army, the company announced.

Firestone said the new tread uses about the same amount of rubber that would go into a regulation airplane tire, but gives the plane from four to eight times greater contact area on the ground. Intensive tests have been conducted at Wright Field, Dayton.

"Firestone engineers were called in by the army air force to develope an endless-trac type of landing gear," the company's announcement said.

"They cooperated with the Dowty Equipment Co., which was experimenting with a gear of the level suspension type. The endless trac type gear may be likened in its operation to the trac which enables a tank to get through where a truck on wheels would bog down."

WHAT DO YOU MEAN?
WE MEAN THAT, today, you can put up to 200 miles of wear on your motor before you drive 5 blocks*
Less driving, longer rests give oil more time than ever to drain down from or dry off of cylinder walls and pistons, leaving them without effective lubrication when you start up. Real damage may happen before that oil gets back on the job.
*According to expert opinion, there can be as much wear in one minute—on a motor starting up with "dry" piston and cylinder walls—as there would be in up to 200 miles of normal "warmed-up" driving.
DON'T RISK UNNECESSARY "START-UP" DAMAGE

LUBRICATION . . . BEFORE YOU STEP on the starter! V.E.P. has a "magnetic-like" action which makes it cling to cylinder walls and pistons for weeks at a time. You know vital parts have protective lubrication before you get behind the wheel.

Fighting of U. S. Air Troops Wins Praise from General

By The Associated Press

LONDON, July 23—By repulsing German armies to protect beach landings, airborne troops proved their worth in Sicily and won the right to a still more prominent part in coming invasions, Major Gen. Joseph M. Swing declared yesterday.

At a press conference the general disclosed that the American airborne force which descended on Sicily was larger than any other ever set down in a single operation. General Swing did not make public the exact number of troops employed, but he indicated it was close to the whole personnel of the 82nd airborne division.

In their first test under fire, these young parachute and glider troopers used anti-tank guns and 75 millimeter field howitzers to beat back efforts of the 15th German armored division to smash down on the beaches where the American first and 45th infantry divisions were coming ashore. The soldiers from the sky held staunchly against the best the enemy could throw at them from Friday night until the land forces reached them Monday, the general said.

Swing reported airborne troops not only proved their worth to their own commanders, but completely sold themselves to the ground commanders. "Major Gen. Troy Middleton, commanding the 45th division, was so pleased with the work of the airborne unit that he tried to keep them," Swing said.

Regarding British airborne operations behind the enemy lines in the Syracuse area, Swing quoted Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery as saying, "they advanced our operations by a week."

Despite high winds, bad weather and the necessity of flying a circuitous route to avoid mixing up with the air cover for naval convoys, Swing said, landings were made with jump losses "no higher than would be expected in practice operations under the same conditions."

Similarly, losses in planes from operational causes were light. Swing branded enemy reports that many planes and gliders had been shot down as "absolutely untrue."

The general said that while the Germans fought well for a while, there was much evidence that "the axis allies do not trust each other," and that this was reflected in their defeats. He added, "the German has not yet broken. But he will, just as he did in Tunisia."

Swing expressed the conviction that on the other hand the allies would "drive forward with complete confidence in themselves. Each American knows that his British or Canadian or French ally is a damn good soldier. He knows he won't be let down."

OHIO DAIRY HAULING COMMITTEE FORMED

State Group To Seek To Conserve Motor Equipment.

The organization of the Ohio Dairy Industry Transportation Coordinating committee, for the purpose of conserving transportation in collecting milk and cream, has been completed, it was reported today by A. P. Dankert, district manager of the Columbus ODT office and coordinating district manager for the Ohio Dairy Industry Transportation program.

The formation and appointment of dairy industry members was completed under procedures outlined in directives issued by the Office of Defense Transportation, according to Mr. Dankert. Committeemen were selected from 48 nominations, representing the fields of processing, producing and hauling. The final committee gives a representative to each of the eight ODT district offices with two selected from the Cleveland district.

The transportation coordinating committee will concern itself with the movement of dairy products from the farm to the processors or manufacturers and act jointly to conserve motor equipment in collecting dairy products.

Members of the Ohio organization representing processors are: E. K. Berg, Telling-Belle Vernon Co., Cleveland; O. E. Barkey, Canton Pure Milk Co., Canton; C. T. Alexander, M. & R. Dietetic Laboratories, Columbus. Producer representatives are: Stanley Boze, Dayton; A. O. Bonnell, Cincinnati; Kenneth Indoe, Lodi. The haulers are represented by: Fred Degner, Toledo, Ronald Pryor, Orwell; Robert Neff, Chandlersville.

Other committeemen include C. F. Christian and Ralph Sherman, Ohio State university; John Clanflona, Public Utilities Commission of Ohio; W. B. Wood, Ohio State Department of Agriculture; E. Kenrad, Ohio U. S. D. A. war board, and Dr. R. H. Markwith, Ohio State Department of Health, all of Columbus. Mr. Christian was named secretary.

Three subcommittees, (1) for selection of areas, (2) for area dairy industry transportation committees, (3) and a subcommittee for review, are being appointed by C. T. Alexander, who was named chairman of the state committee, Mr. Dankert declared.

Plans for conserving motor vehicle transportation developed by the committee will be submitted to ODT and the department of justice for approval. These plans are not expected to alter producer outlets or to change buying areas of manufacturers.

Mrs. Casey Jones Helps Keep Trains Rolling

THEN: Ruffled overalls were the thing for women workers on the B. & O. R. R. in 1918.

NOW: One of the many women railroad workers doing men's jobs in World war II is Mrs. Helen Szubelek, boilermaker's assistant at the Pennsylvania shops in Wilmington, Del.

By ARLENE WOLF
Associated Press Features Writer

The ladies are working on the railroad these days. They're filling jobs from baggage tender to trackwoman, and doing famously, thank you.

From coast to coast, women in oily, grimy overalls are keeping the trains rolling and helping to solve the nation's transportation problem. You walk over to the railroad station to buy a ticket—from a woman. The hands that take care of your baggage very likely have nail polish on them, and the conductor who yodels out the names of the train stops may have a soprano voice.

There are women behind the scenes along the tracks too—rivet heaters, truck drivers, brakewomen, hostlers, switchtenders, signalwomen, boilermakers, machinists and sheet metal workers.

Took Son's Place

One spunky mother took her son's camp cook job for a B. and O. signal construction corps. In Pennsylvania, a boss boilermaker's assistant is his wife. And the wife of the Southern Pacific switchman fills oil tanks. Other women find their natural bent for cleanliness useful when they're cleaning locomotives.

Although the presence of women along the line is not unusual these days, and the men insist they like having these efficient females around, less than 100 years ago a woman on the railroad was an oddity. Susan Morningstar, a cleaner, was the first woman employed by any railroad, according to the record. The first woman secretary on the B. and O. went to work in the early 90's, and found that because of her, the men got rid of the office cuspidor and began wearing their jackets!

During the first World war the number of women on the railroads increased because of a shortage of manpower. In 1917, for example, Hazel Cornell was put on in the roadmaster's office of the Northern Pacific as an experiment—and came through with flying colors when she was left on her own for five months during the roadmaster's illness.

On the Uptrade

Although current figures show that we have not reached the peak set in World war I, when 100,000 women were employed on the roads, the number is increasing steadily. Before Pearl Harbor, only 3 per cent of the 1,260,848 railroad employes were women—about 37,800 in all. By May of last year, the figure had jumped to 50,000, and today the female Casey Jones number about 87,100.

When Miss Cornell made her railroad debut, men on the roads had a tendency to keep women in the background. Today, they're proud of what the ladies are doing, and don't miss a chance to praise them.

And the women? How do they feel about messing around in oil and dirt and grime, doing backbreaking jobs They love it.

"There is no finer war job than this," as one baggage "smasher" said. "If this releases a man for the Army, then here I stay."

Little Chats on Public Notices

By JAMES E. POLLARD
Ohio State University.

IGNORANCE NOT BLISS

Like so many generalizations, the old saw that ignorance is bliss is only partly true. In Illinois, for instance, it was reported recently that, contrary to law, financial reports of road districts in seventeen counties were not published. As these units have nothing like an annual town meeting, the survey pointed out, "if the report is not published, the only way a citizen can get information on finances is to examine the original records."

Since this is something the average citizen cannot or will not do, it means that for the most part he is left in ignorance as to how these public funds are expended. He is thus unable to pass proper judgment on this government activity or on those responsible for it.

In such a situation the taxpayer is kept ignorant but hardly in bliss. In all such cases steps should be taken in the public interest to compel the publication of such Public Notices as are prescribed by law in newspapers of general circulation.

MOVIES GET REAL JUMP
By The United Press

CAMP PENDLETON, Cal.—Accidents by members of the air force often inadvertently furnish roving movie photographers with authentic shots which later are incorporated into some film as an integral part of the latter. Lt. Philip J. De Groot, while doing a routine flight along the coast, had an engine stall and took to his parachute. He landed safely, while his plane crashed, exploded and burned. A movie crew on location here has just informed him that he will be a movie hero in some future film.

PORTLAND, Ore. — Philip J. Considering one-fourth of the 43,000 postmasters in the United States were women, and many thousands of the men were over 40 years of age, that is a high percentage, Gallagher said.

Blame and Credit

SECRETARY OF INTERIOR ICKES, who claims that "drafted" business men are running the war and must be blamed for everything that goes wrong, should be first to admit that New Dealers, bureaucrats and brain trusters —his own listing—can not take credit for the successes, therefore. Since Mr. Ickes is said to be in a mellow mood of late, perhaps he would settle for a draw.

Business men and bureaucrats must share both credit and blame in the war. Some business men who have gone to Washington have behaved like bureaucrats at their worst, and some bureaucrats have behaved like business men at their best. When both were efficient, things were accomplished. Otherwise, there was a mess. No one class can be singled out for all the blame, or all the credit, which is fairly obvious.

It would be helpful if Mr. Ickes were to clear up what is behind the common conjecture that the men who ostensibly run the executive departments don't really run them at all but must accept decisions from a "hidden government" of unlisted and vaguely identified men working behind the scenes. This suspicion is at the root of widespread distrust of Washington's real intentions in the war, not bureaucrats or New Dealers. The bureaucrats can be cut off the payroll and New Dealers can be thrown out at the polls. But men who can be reached neither through the payroll nor the polls are a special problem. Mr. Ickes might talk frankly about them sometime if he wants to clear up misconceptions about the government in wartime.

Nothing Halfway in Total War

ONE effect of the bombing of Rome, aside from making it difficult for the Axis to rush reserves to Sicily, is to illustrate the nature of total war.

Doing everything in your power to make the enemy weaker is total war. The Allied officials responsible for the decision to bomb Rome were satisfied in their own minds that the deed was worth the risk. They decided that damage to historic and religious monuments which would stir resentment against the Allies could be held to a minimum, that the reaction of Italians would be opposite from that of the English, whose will to resist was stiffened, not shattered, by the bombing of London, and that enough immediate damage could be done on the first raid to make recurrent raids unnecessary.

This is the way total war is fought. If Rome happened to be the capital of Great Britain, it would have been bombed long before this, on the supposition that the Germans and Italians, having planned to win a quick victory by total war, would have exploited its possibilities the instant they had the chance. The Allies were deliberate. In England, where the meaning of total war is evident in acres of ruins, Allied deliberation had been criticized as a possible hazard to the lives of soldiers who might be made safer if the Italian communications system were shattered in Rome.

Total war is horrible. But in total war, the most horrible thing would be halfway measures against an enemy avowedly determined to use everything.

Summer Project for CIO

AS ALL congressmen soon will know, a campaign has been opened by CIO to convert them to a pro-labor attitude against their return to Washington in the middle of September. A letter has been sent to all CIO affiliates outlining recommended methods of applying persuasion. The campaign is far milder than that of President William Green of AFL; he wants a purge. CIO's method is temperate and reasonable, calling chiefly for making congressmen better acquainted with labor. On only one point can there be sharp disagreement—that being 100 per cent for labor and being 100 per cent for the administration's war program are two sides of the same thing.

The administration's war program calls for uninterrupted production. It calls for uninterrupted production of coal, for instance. A great many congressmen who can't be called labor-baiters by any stretch of the imagination were goaded into voting for the Connally-Smith bill by work stoppages in the important mining industry; they hoped it might prevent the union which controls coal production from further interrupting war production.

The CIO must explain to congressmen why labor's spokesmen consider it hostile to expect organized labor to accept responsibility for practices committed in its name. What the 78th congress has turned against is not labor, not organized labor, not any part of labor, but the false assumption that of all organized minorities in the United States only organized labor should be above criticism and immune to restriction.

FIND THE BRASS MINES

They're telling now of a certain Washington official who insisted that operators should be forced to "speed up the mining of copper, aluminum and brass." Interesting places, those brass mines.—Wall Street Journal.

THE WORLD IN REVIEW

Tactics of Jungle Warfare

By Maj. Gen. David Prescott Barrows

Military Authority and Former President of the University of California.

IN TWO previous articles I have described the great tropical forest and jungle that covers the islands where our forces are now fighting the Japanese, and the aptitude that our enemy has also shown in adapting his weapons, equipment and tactics to this difficult terrain.

The ground combats that we are now giving the enemy in the South Pacific islands will take place in typical jungle conditions with all the hardships that this environment adds to the dangers of war. To appreciate what our men do, we should understand how they do it, and what obstacles they overcome.

There is a technique to jungle fighting that I think already can be described. When the fighting in the Solomons and New Guinea is over, I believe that our soldiers and Marines will know more about this kind of fighting than any other nation and will have mastered a special technique for this type of combat. Their technique affects units and their organization, the weapons, the clothing and equipment of the men, and the proper method of combat to be followed, where friends and foes are very close to one another in the dark, hot jungle growth, whose foliage is so dense that little can be seen either of friends or foe.

Paul Mallon, whose column appears on this page as a regular feature, is on a vacation. Publication of his column will be resumed early in August.

Units Small

It is apparent that effective fighting units are small, the individual soldier is very much on his own; he can easily be cut off, lost from his companions so far as sight and even hearing is concerned, and he must be taught to rely upon himself. A squad of 10 or 11 men is probably the most important unit of them all, and its sergeant and corporal must know their men and stick close to them. In thick jungle the squad is the largest body of men, all of whom can be seen at one time, and who can be held together under a single leadership. Above the squad we have the platoon, the company, and finally the main combat unit, the battalion.

Reports indicate that a great deal rests upon the battalion commander, especially in training, but necessity requires that in action he decentralize his command. He frequently cannot communicate with or direct his captains, neither can they closely supervise their lieutenants and the platoons.

There is a danger in these conditions of units getting out of touch, becoming separated, isolated, lost or unable to respond to the will of the battalion commander. The protection against this dispersal seems to lie in very fully explaining every situation to soldiers throughout the command. They must be prepared by comprehending the ground over which they must advance, the positions of the enemy, and they must know what the mission of the force is, how far it will advance, where it will be reunited, and if necessary be reorganized.

Compasses Essential

Advance in the jungle is necessarily slow—a series of thrusts for only a few hundred yards. Even so men will be separated and lost in the undergrowth, and assembly points on the advance must be frequent. Our Marines on Guadalcanal called for the issue of a compass to every man, and objectives seem to be best designated by compass direction.

Every commander of even the smallest element must have in his mind a clear picture of just what is to be done. Troops cannot be massed, maneuvered and directed in the jungle as they may be in the open field. For a unit as large as a battalion the fight breaks up into a large number of combats, independently led.

The Japanese made use of what is spoken as "infiltration" —the deep penetration by small parties behind the enemy's front line, where their presence was exceedingly disturbing and where if a point was gained that could be held, they were reinforced and put fire from the flank or rear upon their enemy.

When on the defensive, or holding a place temporarily for security, the Japanese prepared ambushes, dug holes around the roots and great buttresses of trees, camouflaged weapons and men in the abundant foliage, until they could hardly be seen until stepped upon.

They make considerable use of snipers, or sharp-shooters, instructed particularly to shoot down officers and leaders. These snipers have been lodged and tied in trees at heights that overlook the surrounding jungle. Our men have reported, however, that stories of its effect have been exaggerated; that Japanese marksmanship is generally poor, and frequently unaimed.

Time after time the slow approach, one party against the other, results in rushing attacks in which the blade is used.

Jungle Weapons

The weapons that have apparently been most serviceable in jungle fighting are the automatic rifle or light tommy gun, the hand grenade, indispensable in brush fighting, and the light trench mortar. Our soldiers have called also for a knife, not only for hand to hand fighting but for cutting away obstructions of the jungle that impede a man in crawling forward, or advancing. Years ago, when I knew our Philippine scouts, they were equipped with a "bolo bayonet" which when detached from the rifle was a perfect Malay jungle knife, a parang.

In the darkness, flashlights are used, but adversely reported upon as likely to draw fire. Compasses and watches in every squad apparently should have illuminated faces if lives are to be saved.

Food carried on the man is reduced to the lightest compact packages. Here the Japanese produced an extraordinary ration, including bottles of vitamin pills, stimulants, quinine, and even morphine to ease the pain of any injury. Sweet chocolate is esteemed as a ration. Although the jungle is damp, good water is always a problem. Sterilizing tablets are issued and extra canteens, that can be dragged forward on the ground, are essential.

The protection of men against malaria and other disorders is of the greatest consequence. For more are disabled by fever than by bullets of the enemy. In this field I should expect our medical service to be very skillful. It may even produce some new triumphs in protecting the body against tropical disease.

G. O. P. White House Feelers

By Jack Stinnett

Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 23—There has been a lot of talk around here about how much political pulse - feeling the Democratic members of congress are going to do on their vacations, but it's my guess the Republican members will do a lot more.

Gen. MacArthur

There isn't a politician worth the name who doesn't realize that the Republican national convention next summer is going to be a "favorite son" convention—and doesn't know that such conventions are the ones filled with dynamite.

Let me quote a former chairman of the national Democratic committee, who no longer is a front man in the political arena but still must remain nameless.

"Dewey and MacArthur (that's Governor Tom of New York and "that man" in the Pacific war theater) seem to be the logical Republican possibilities. They are men the Republicans should think they might win with.

"But the 'favorite son' prospects now indicate there is a strong probability of a convention deadlock and the opponents of Mr. Wendell Willkie will have to be very alert to find enough favorite-son parking spaces if they are going to prevent Mr. Willkie from capturing the nomination."

MacArthur's Position

That is an interesting long-range observation for several reasons, but mainly because it's an "opposition" party conclusion that if Dewey is as reluctant to run as he insists he is, the Republican "Old Guard" and middle-of-the-roaders may have to concentrate on MacArthur if they have any serious intentions of defeating Willkie in convention and capturing the seat in the White House in November, 1944.

MacArthur not only hasn't given the slightest nod to any of his backers but he has publicly disavowed all interest in national politics. Intimates who have been in contact with him recently say he's now a man with one burning passion — to vindicate his whole military career by recapturing the islands he and his men were driven out of and to spearhead the attack on the nation that drove them into the seas off Bataan and Corregidor.

These intimates are confident that even if he were nominated, MacArthur would refuse the nomination. That is a point that the "MacArthur - for - President" club in Illinois (where they insist they will put him on the primary ticket for president, with or without his permission) would do well to explore.

His Ambition

Under the present Army ruling, if MacArthur were named in convention, he would have to abandon his command to accept the nomination. He would have to resign from the Army, return to civilian life, and give up the very things he now is seeking so strenuously to achieve.

The president, as his commander in chief, probably would exempt him from the order, as a gesture of courtesy toward a prospective opponent. But that wouldn't change MacArthur's obligation to what friends say now is his sole ambition.

Watch Bird

By The Associated Press

COLUMBIA, S. C.—A turkey gobbler watch dog is Mac Irish's innovation in poultry raising.

A welfare department case worker was surprised the other day when she heard a scuffle and shouts of "fight me, fight me I say" as she approached the farmer's house. Rounding a corner there was Irish doing a boxer's pirouettes and throwing left hooks at the gobbler.

The 65-year-old poultry farmer, catching his breath, explained the turkey gobbler "is the best watch dog I've ever had."

The crocodile is native to all the Greater Antilles except Puerto Rico.

As a result of the president's first hand inspection, Agriculture Secretary Wallace was believed to have won his battle with Interior Secretary Work over partial control of the Alaskan territory. Members of the president's party were staging a shuffleboard tournament aboard the Henderson on the return trip.

Learning New Languages

Thousands Are Doing It, and Using New Short-Cut Methods.

By ARLENE WOLF

Associated Press Feature Writer

LEARN a language. Learn any language. Everybody's doing it.

Maybe you're too busy to go to school, but that's no obstacle. Just sit in your living room, turn on the radio, and out comes a language. Or open a neat little case of records, and put one on the phonograph.

Deal A Language

If you're social-minded, there's a playing card method, so you can share new knowledge with the rest of the family. Should you crave variety, there's even a course that gives you a smattering of seven different tongues at one time.

Interest in languages has more than doubled since the outbreak of war, according to conservative estimates. Some authorities link this new interest with a trend toward anti-isolationism. The fact that people want to know other languages, they say, shows a desire to participate in things international.

Important For Servicemen

Others attribute it to the fact that thousands of men and women going into the services feel another language will be a necessity.

"War Linguistics," Dr. Mario Pei's bird-eye-view course at Columbia University makes the student proficient in identifying various languages—a vital thing for a soldier in a foreign land.

Remember back in high school when you sat and wearily conjugated "I love, you love, he loves, we love, they love, you love?" Those days are gone forever. The new "direct methods" by which millions of Americans are learning today, make a detour around grammar and plunge headlong into practical conversation.

Natural Method

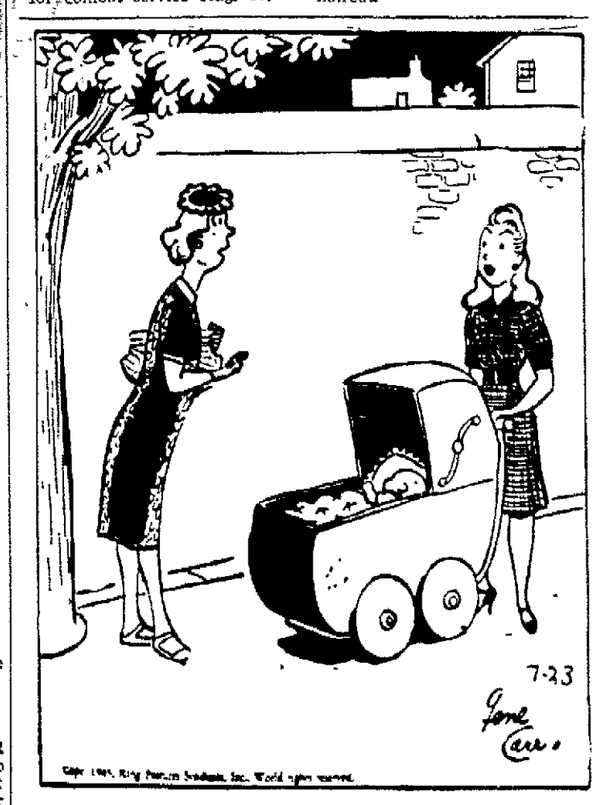
"It's the only natural way to learn," Max Sherover, director of the Linguaphone Institute insists. "A child learns to speak long before he worries about grammar. In past years, we've succeeded in making simple things far too complex. Old school methods taught the student to read and translate, but not to speak. Today, we're going back to the fundamentals of the spoken word."

Spanish is the most popular new language for Americans today. French, which was number one on the list, fell off with Vichy, but has been making a comeback since the North African campaign. Russian is also high on the list of present-day favorites. And there was a concerted rush after Pearl Harbor among persons who thought Japanese would be handy to know.

Politics Make a Difference

Interest in languages has always been connected closely with European politics, even among high school students. German is a classic example of this fluctuation. Before the first World War, German was the leading foreign language studied in New York's high schools. Came 1917, and enrollment declined to a fraction of the former figure. It didn't pick up until 1921, and in 1934 it started falling off again.

Since the average American's ordinary speaking vocabulary consists of only about seven hundred words, the experts insist it's easy to give them a similar vocabulary in another tongue. And once a person is bi-lingual, they say, learning a third language is just as easy as going in for a haircut.



"Why, Irene Brown! What's new with you?"

Talked Into It

If the Cee Hadn't Been Seven Feet Feet Tall We Never Would Have Had To Write This Explanation.

By DAMON RUNYON

WELL, the man was insistent.

Drunk, too.

Did I, or did I not, think that the baseball players of the 10 years preceding the war were as good, if not better, than those of any period of the game?

I was in a bit of a predicament.

A certain instinct about lushes propounding an argument told me that the bloke favored the affirmative. My own opinion and my memory of the records tended to the negative.

Well, as I say, the guy was stiff, and who am I with my pot-belly to run the risk of a bust on the beezer over a thing like that? I said yes. What would you have said, bearing in mind that the mugg was rummed up and also nearly seven feet tall?

I said yes, and then I took it on the Romme up the street, but now as I sit here at my pages of "Baseball," the official tome of the national pastime issued from the office of the national pastime issued rom the office of the Matahma of Maul, himself, Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis I want to tell that big bum something (not you Judge—the other gee).

I want to tell him that in the first place he is a schlemiel, and in the second place he better not let me catch him when I have got my gang with me. And in the third place, the baseball players of the 10 years preceding the war were just pygmies compared to those of the preceding 30 years from 1900 to 1930. That period produced three men whose deeds to this day dominate the whole history of the game.

They were Tyrus Raymond Cobb, George Herman Ruth and Edward Trowbridge Collins. The record book shows that practically all the records deemed of value in baseball belong to them. So-called "modern" baseball dates from 1900, but taking the full span of the big league game, Cobb, Ruth and Collins are still the towering all-time figures.

The peerless Coob holds the highest lifetime batting percentage, .367 for 4,191 hits in 11,429 times at bat. He hit .300 for more years than any other man—23. He made the most base hits, 4,191 for the most total bases, 5,863. He stole the greatest number of bases, 892.

THE great Ruth batted in the most runs, 2,209, and made the most long hits, 714 home runs, 136 three baggers and 506 doubles. He made the most home runs in a season 60. He drew the most bases on balls, 2,056. Collins, besides his record of longest service as a player, 25 years, which is not important, made the most sacrifice hits, 514.

You find the names of but four players of the "modern" era credited with "most" records. They are Joe DiMaggio for the most consecutive games with one or more hits, Bob Feller for the most strikeouts in a single game, 18; Johnny Vandermeer for the most consecutive no-hits games, two; and Charley Ruffing for the most world series games won, seven.

But it is Walter Johnson who holds the record for the most strikeouts in history of the game with 6,497, and Walter was of the period preceding 1930. It was Lou Gehrig who played in the most consecutive games, 2,130, though I will concede this a feat of physical endurance more than anything else. It was Ed Walsh who pitched in more games in one season than any other man in 63 years from 1879 to the present day. He was in 66 games. It was the period between 1900 and 1930 that saw Rube Waddell, Eddie Plank, Chief Bender, Christy Mathewson, Addie Joss, Hal Chase, Honus Wagner, Frank Chance, Johnny Evers, Napoleon Lajoie, Ed Delehanty, Sisler, Speaker, Hornsby, Sam Crawford, Heilmann, Stuffy McInnis, Rousch, Sheckard, Alexander, Frank Baker and scores of other giants.

I wish I knew that stew's telephone number. I would call him up one or two or three or four or five or six times!

War Routs Ghosts

By JOSEPH GOODWIN

Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS—The sheet waving, bone rattling crew which has occupied New Orleans' most widely known haunted house for the past 111 years has been dispossessed to make way for war workers.

Despite the kindness which this city—and the entire South—always has shown its ghosts and "ha'nts," no investigation by the rental division of the OPA is anticipated.

With the city's normal half million population augmented by 50,000 new war workers and an additional 12,000 workers anticipated to man new building aircraft plants, ghosts will have to shift for themselves.

The famous old Lalaurie mansion at the corner of Gov. Nicholls and Royal streets, in the heart of the Vieux Carre, has been opened up, renovated and divided into apartments.

According to legend, a beautiful woman, twice widowed, was married to Dr. Louis Lalaurie in 1825. The mansion, a three story gem in the French empire style, was built for her at a cost in excess of $100,000.

One night a minor fire broke out on the lower floor and neighbors rushed to aid in fighting the flames. They found seven slaves "in varying degrees of torment and starvation." A mob gathered and the Lalauries fled to Mooile and thence to Paris.

Then the ghosts came, bringing their sheets, death's-heads, rattling bones and other standard equipment.

Says a writer of the period: "Hoarse voices like unto those supposed to come only from the charnel house floated out onto the fog laden air on dismal and rainy nights, with the ominous sounds of clanking chains coming from the servants' quarters."

The ghostly tenancy has been interrupted several times but for only brief periods and even then the eerie folk gathered their sheets and retired to more remote sections of the house until the interlopers were gone.

Now there is no room in this crowded shipbuilding and plane building center for ghosts. The Lalaurie "ha'nts" have been booted out by a new owner, living units have been completed and are occupied by busy families.

Unless it is known that water is plentiful and pure, distillation equipment accompanies American expeditionary forces.

Unless there is a military advantage otherwise, the Army's policy is to keep twins in the same organization.

Glamour Goes Truckin'

LOOKING PRETTY FOR THE CAMERA

STILL PRETTY IN OVERALLS

By The Associated Press

Twenty-year-old model Lulu V. Parker may have tossed glamour to the winds when she decided to become a truck driver at the Miami air depot in Hialeah, but she's probably the best looking decoration on any truck for miles around. When the former Detroit model was turned down for the WACs because she was under-age, she decided she still wanted to do something more useful than looking pretty for the cameras at $5 an hour. Although she never drove anything heavier than a passenger car before now, Lulu has no trouble with complicated big G. I. vehicles, and manipulates heavy command and reconnaissance cars easily.

Railway War Record Praised

sponsible for their success. All forms of transportation and industry must work as a unit on the home front to promptly furnish materials necessary for the operation and the winning of this war," he concluded.

Col. Shaffer's Talk

In his brief remarks preceeding Mr. Littrell's talk, Col. Shaffer sketched activities of the depot since it was placed in operation last fall. He said many difficulties had to be overcome in getting the vast plant in operation. "From our point of view the community and its residents possibly didn't look on the depot, or other government services here, as a vital link in the nation's war effort.

"Among the most outstanding stumbling blocks were labor and living conditions. Residents of Marion did little to help either," he charged.

"Actually," he said, "the depot is one plant which local people can really be proud of—for the most part it was built by Marion workmen and its present staff, excluding Army personnel, is made up of residents of this immediate area.

"The depot in its first year has made a fine record. Outstanding records have been made and others are to come. For instance, not one cent for demurrage has been paid for shipments in or out of the depot. This is a record, I'll wager, which no other government plant of this type in the country can equal," he added.

He stressed the need and importance of a planned post-war program in Marion. He urged civic groups of all types to set up committee to lay plans for the era which will follow the present war. "Of course we have to put everything possible into the war in order to benefit in the post-war period," he concluded.

J. E. Anderson of Cleveland, freight agent of the New York Central railroad, served as toastmaster. Immediately before adjourning the meeting, he commended Colonel Shaffer and other officers at the depot for the fine record in handling of incoming and outgoing freight, resulting in the no-demurrage record.

In Guest List

Both Colonel Shaffer and Major Gruber were guests of the organization. Other guests included, W. J. Locke, mayor of Mansfield; Capt. F. J. Klapp, executive officer of the Scioto Ordnance Plant; Lt. H. D. L. Van Selven, transportation officer of Marion Engineer Depot; George Lumb of Cleveland, freight agent of the Erie railroad; E. W. Seville of Pittsburgh, assistant general freight of the Pennsylvania railroad; and George W. Wood of Cincinnati, freight traffic manager of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad.

A large number of the visitors took advantage of favorable weather conditions in the afternoon to tour the nine-hole Country club golf course. Low score of the afternoon was made by M. S. Rose of Findlay, who was medalist at the meeting a year ago.

Prizes Distributed

The golf prizes were distributed at the conclusion of the dinner program. Also awarded were door prizes of war savings bonds and stamps. Two $25 war bonds and several partially-filled 25-cent war savings stamp albums were given out.

Arrangements for the meeting were made by a committee headed by A. R. Tennis of Marion, division freight agent of the Erie railroad. He was assisted by Grayden E. Sobers, traffic manager of the Marion Steam Shovel Co., Sam Ross, traffic manager of the Huber Manufacturing Co., and R. T. Lewis, president of the Marion Country club.

Officers of the club are Robert E. Chell of Cleveland, president; Carl J. Brock of Mansfield, first vice president; Robert Christie of Cleveland, second vice president; M. H. McCullough of Mansfield, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Sobers is a member of the organization's board of trustees.

Oldtime Seaman Back in Service, Now an Ensign

By International News Service

CHARLESTON, S. C.—The fact that he is one of the oldest—if not the oldest—men in the United States Navy holding the rank of Ensign doesn't perturb William Taylor McMahon.

The 61- or 63-year-old seaman (it all depends on what you want to know for) asserted that it did not worry him a single iota that most officers of the same rank are less than half of his age.

Attached to the Charleston Inshore Patrol Section Base, "Mr. Mc," as he is affectionately called by fellow seamen, is almost as busy as the proverbial one-armed paperhanger doing his duty in the war effort as best he can. And to him, that's all there is to it.

Mr. Mc. enlisted in the service 42 years ago, when, by the family Bible records, he was but 19 years old. Upon his first visit to the recruiting office in Atlanta, he was told that he was too young, and to come back when he was 21.

So, downhearted, McMahon took a long walk, had lunch, and toward mid afternoon went back to the Navy recruiting office.

"It was funny," Ensign McMahon chuckled today, "but that walk aged me two years. They let me in."

Born in 1882

That, he explained, is the reason of the discrepancy in his age—or ages—today. He said he was really born June 2, 1882, in a small Kentucky town that doesn't even exist today.

He was first made an ensign toward the end of 1919, after serving through World War I, but in 1921 he was reverted back to his rank of chief electrician's mate—the rating he held during the war.

Later, he was transferred to the Fleet Naval Reserve, where he served until 1931, when he retired.

McMahon came back into the Navy as chief electrician's mate in July, 1941, and was assigned to duty at the Charleston section base. He was given his temporary appointment as ensign June 22, 1942.

During World War I, 'Mr. Mc' served aboard battleships, cruisers, minesweepers, and as far back as 1907 and 1909 he was aboard one of the early submarines with Ensign Chester E. Nimitz, who now holds the rank of admiral.

Recalling his tour of duty aboard the submarine, he said:

"The sub I was on, the Plunger, was only 64 feet long, and had no compartments at all. It had automobile gas engines and only 11 men in the crew."

He said he had no narrow escapes while aboard the Plunger—except for the time they ran afoul of a tow line. They got out of that without too much difficulty, he said.

He owns a home, "and a few acres of land" on Route 1, Arden, N. C., where his wife is staying while he is on duty.

Potatoes for Hog Feed Considered by WFA

WASHINGTON, July 23—The war food administration has acquired so many potatoes under its grower price support program during the past few weeks that some may have to be diverted into livestock feed or go to waste.

The WFA said today it had bought about 4,000 cars of early variety potatoes to keep prices from dropping below the minimum guaranteed farmers when they were asked last winter to expand production.

About 3,000 cars are on hand. Officials said that unless they are disposed of soon, many would spoil.

The WFA has under consideration proposals to sell some of the potatoes for hog feed.

Japs Finish Runway for Planes on Kiska

HEADQUARTERS, ALASKA DEFENSE COMMAND, July 23—The Japanese apparently have no intention of abandoning Kiska without a vicious battle.

American aerial reconnaissance indicates the enemy finally has completed its 3,700-foot airplane runway, long under construction on the repeatedly-bombed island.

Since Attu was captured and Japanese surface craft have been swept from the North Pacific and the Bering sea, however, the Japanese face a considerable task in getting planes to the island.

American air raiders, using delayed action as well as regular bombs, continue forays on the island whenever weather permits.

Swedish Potatoes

4 hard-cooked eggs, salt and pepper or paprika, 6 small potatoes, cream sauce, 2 cups bread or cracker crumbs or crumbled corn flakes.

Cook potatoes in skins, peel and slice. Shell hard-cooked eggs and slice. Put sliced potatoes in bottom of greased baking dish, add layer of sliced eggs, alternating until all are used. Season lightly and pour cream sauce over all. Top with bread crumbs, cracker crumbs or crumbled corn flakes, and bake until top is brown —about 15 minutes, in 350 degree oven. Cheese may be grated over top before browning.

1½ c. cake flour, 2 tsps. baking powder, ¼ tsp. salt, 5 tbsps. soft shortening, ¾ c. sugar, 1 tsp. grated lemon rind, 1 egg, ½ c. milk, ¼ c. coarsely chopped nut meats.

Grease 12 cup cake pans, or line with paper cups. Light oven and heat to 375 degrees F. Sift flour, measure and sift several times with baking powder, salt and sugar. Cream fat with lemon rind, add flour mixture, egg and milk; stir until flour is dampened, then beat vigorously 1 minute. Turn into prepared pans, filling them 2/3 full. Sprinkle tops with nut meats and bake 20 to 25 minutes.

SAULT STE. MARIE, ONT., July 23—A large force of United States troops is stationed in this city to assist in the defenses of the vital Sault locks through which lake traffic flows past the rapids of the St. Mary's river between Lake Hurson and Lake Superior, it was disclosed on authority of Maj. Health Without Meat, Scientists' Goal in Research

By RENNIE TAYLOR
Associated Press Writer

PALO ALTO, Calif., July 23—A scientific test procedure which may help counteract the nutritional efforts of the meat shortage was reported today by Stanford university researchers.

It is a new and simplified method of determining the varieties and amounts of amino acids—compounds which constitute proteins. There are at least 23 of these compounds and they are the basic components of all living things, plant and animal.

For proper nutrition, humans have to get about ten of these amino acids ready-made. They cannot, like plants, make their own.

Meat, milk, cheese and eggs are the main sources of these ready-made substances.

Ordinary vegetables also contain proteins but as yet diet experts do not know exactly which plants and how much of each a person should have in order to get all the amino acids he needs.

Up to now the job of analyzing food substances for their kinds and quantities of amino acids has involved long, complicated chemical processes which only experts could perform.

But four Stanford biochemists today disclosed they were working out a short cut to the answers. The experimenters, Dr. G. W. Beadle, Dr. E. L. Tatum, Dr. N. H. Horowitz and Dr. D. M. Bonner, are breeding microscopic organisms which act as amino acids indicators.

The parent organism is a variety of ordinary bread mold.

They found one strain of this mold which would not grow unless vitamin B-1 was added to its otherwise regular food.

And certain other new strains refused to grow without a particular kind of amino acid in their diet—a different one for each strain.

By feeding test substance to these strains and measuring their growth the experimenters can tell what kind and how much of an amino acid the food contains.

They're seeking test molds for all ten ready-made amino acids that humans need—and further experimenting they hope may show how these ten may be obtained from sources other than meat.

Army Casualties Below World War I Mark

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23—The United States has been a belligerent in this war longer than it participated in the World war but Army casualties have been only about 25 per cent of the 1917-total, Acting Secretary of War Robert P. Patterson told a press conference yesterday that reports through July 7 show 65,136 Army casualties, against a total of 248,589 in 1917 and 1918. But Patterson added:

"It is almost certain that the fighting in immediate prospect will be much harder than anything we have experienced yet, and the casualties will mount."

"The period of relative quiet is gone. We will do well not to underrate the enemy's strength."

Of Army casualties through July 7, 7,471 were killed, 673 died of wounds, 17,724 wounded, 21,076 missing and 18,192 prisoners.

Ohio Farm Production Lower

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., July 23—Ohio's 1943 farm production will fall far short of last year, with every major field and fruit crop showing a decline, agricultural experts estimate.

Winter wheat, dropping from 36,183,000 bushels in 1942 to 26,267,000 this year, and corn, off 44,802,000 bushels from last year's 185,752,000-bushel output, are expected to lead the downward trend, the federal-state crop reporting service said.

Soy bean sowing increasing 11 per cent for a total of 1,598,000 acres but because rains prevented seeding of some land until June no estimate was made of this crop.

Oats output is expected to drop from 51,824,000 bushels to 44,410,000 bushels, while hay production of 6,905,000 tons would be only 7,000 tons short of last year.

Apple, pear and peach output will be approximately halved while a huge slash in the cherry yield is anticipated. Sugar beet crops are estimated at about one-fifth of last year's.

Other indicated 1943 yields with last year's output:

Barley—987,000 and 1,428,000 bushels; rye—1,290,000 and 1,649,000 bushels; sugar beets—110,000 and 595,000 tons; tobacco—20,278,000 and 24,056,000 pounds; apples—34 and 64 per cent of normal; peaches—388,000 and 878,000 bushels; pears—202,000 and 422,000 bushels; grapes—20,300 and 22,400 tons; sour cherries—850 and 4,030 tons and sweet cherries —210 and 1,030 tons.

Cards Lamenting Loss of Pitchers

But They Manage To Widen Lead by Beating Giants 6 to 2.

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Some plaintive chirping has been coming from the nest of the St Louis Cardinals in recent days because of their stricken pitching staff, which has been badly mauled by injuries and calls to the service

But their National league rivals probably will be slow to show any sympathy for the world champions, who have just won four games in a row and increased their first place margin to 5½ games in spite of a shortage of first rate hurlers

The Cardinals came up with another victory over the New York Giants last night 6-2 with big Mort Cooper acquiring his thirteenth victory against five defeats

The cause of the Cardinals was helped at Cincinnati as Bucky Walters shut out the Brooklyn Dodgers 5-0 on three hits to get his fifth victory.

The Dodgers' grip on second place was left unshaken, however, because the Philadelphia Phillies bounced off the floor to wallop the third-place Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0 and 9-6 in a doubleheader.

The Boston Braves, who had not beaten the Chicago Cubs all season, also turned the tables with a double victory 8-6 and 3-2

In the American league the New York Yankees out-walloped the St. Louis Browns to win 9-5. A five-run spree by the Yanks in the fourth inning decided the game.

Detroit downed the Washington Senators twice in a twilight-night doubleheader 7-5 and 1-0.

Cleveland was outhit 7-5 but managed to beat the Philadelphia Athletes 2-1 by scoring twice in the fifth.

Chicago at Boston was postponed.

Indians To Play Yanks Morning Game Aug. 18

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 23—Finding their first experiment with morning baseball made a hit with swing shift war plant workers, the Cleveland Indians announced today a second morning contest would be played with the New York Yankees here at League park at 11 a. m. Aug. 18.

This game was postponed from May 21, and a game regularly scheduled on Aug. 18 will be played at 3:30 p. m. that date. Separate admissions will be charged

Fans Calling Epworth Champs, But Who Will Pick Industrial League Winner?

By CHARLES ELLIOTT

Local softball fans are calling the Epworth Methodists "champs" of the Sunday School league already but no one has the audacity to pin any such title on either Huber or Universal Cooler, the industrial league's top-rung outfit.

John Clark's Epworth team has been far too powerful for the other three members of the Sunday School loop all season and still is. Many people say "they ought to be" and they are probably correct. Mr. Clark has some of the city's foremost veterans on his roster in addition to the best of the crop of youthful bat-wielders and elbowers St. Mary, Greenwood, and Presbyterian unfortunately have been represented by only inexperienced high schoolers throughout the season.

If Epworth beats Presbyterian Monday they will boast a record of nine victories and no losses That will be good enough to assure Epworth of at least a tie for the church title this year On the other hand, if St. Mary's second place Irish are downed by Greenwood, Epworth will be wearing the easily-won Sabbath crown as of Monday night.

Huber Bumped

Many of the city's dopesters were ready to concede the industrial pennant to Huber before the Threshers were rudely bumped by a potent Cooler lineup of sphere-murderers, 3 to 2, Wednesday night at Lincoln park. Huber had knocked off the Universal squad about a week after softball league play opened this year, 6 to 5. In addition, Universal was by far the second best team on the field against Coca-Cola in the season curtain-raiser on June 1 as the soft-drinking but hard-hitting Coke players lambasted Cooler, 3 to 1. Huber possessed an unblemished record of six straight loop wins before last night and looked a little too much for any team that Cooler could put on the field.

However, the Marion wise men forgot all about a well-known something, known as "comeback spirit," often instilled in teams playing important return games with squads once their conquerors. Cooler came back so violently that it swept Huber players off their feet but not to the extent that the Threshers did not put up a tough battle.

Huber and Cooler had been scheduled to play their second round meeting on July 13. This game was called at the end of four innings of play. No runs had been marked up on the scoreboard for either team and only one hit had been banged out in the four frames That was a triple by Armbruster, Huber short centerfielder. Harold "Fat" Millisor had not been tourned for a single safety by the big Cooler bats. The two teams appeared to be equal in this abbreviated game in practically every department of the game except pitching Millisor seemed to shade Universal's Bill Everly.

Take Tight Game

With all these on-paper facts against them, the "ten" Cooler softballers nevertheless outfought and out - maneuvered Huber's strategy and took one of the most interesting and tightest contests of the season. Everly pouring in baffling upshoots and speedy straight balls, was a better pitcher than "Fat" Millisor Wednesday night and the big Huber hurler undoubtedly does not deny it.

The Cooler triumph forestalled the clinching of the league title by Huber. The Threshers, if they took Cooler, could have gone a game and a half into the lead and Universal, with Bob Feller and Joe DiMaggio in their lineup, could not have altered the clinching of championship by Huber.

Huber, on the surface, seems to have the advantage over Cooler in the matter of the remaining games for both teams this season. The Threshers are scheduled to meet the Marion Engineer Depot on Aug. 3 at the Lincoln field. Cooler has two games left, General Excavator at Lincoln Thursday and Commercial Steel on Aug. 5, once again at Lincoln park.

Previous to Thursday night's tilt with Excavator, the Depot had not been victorious in a single league game The Engineers were belted by Huber 13 to 2 in the first round and have only taken the weak Waldo Dodgers, 8 to 6 and 11 to 4. However, the Depot has been strengthened with the arrival of some added material in the form of Uncle Sam's soldiers. The first time the improved Engineer team played as a unit this season, it was barely trimmed by Universal, 5 to 2. Huber had better take heed and have both barrels loaded for the clash with the Engineers

Cooler must beat both Excavator and Commercial if Huber defeats the Depot in order to gain a tie in the Industrial league. This will be no simple matter as Excavator has potentially a top-flight team. Commercial should represent easy pickings for Cooler but they could spring the impossible and defeat Universal.

If Huber does win from the Depot and Cooler takes both its remaining contests, the two teams will finish with identical records of seven wins and one loss. A play-off game will then be necessitated to determine which team receives the annual award presented by the softball commission to the Industrial circuit champ.

If the rabid race comes down into the stretch with both Huber and Cooler participating in a photo-finish, this play-off contest will furnish Marion fans with one of the most thrilling and ideal set-ups for a story-book game in the history of the sport in this former hot-bed of softball. About 400 saw Wednesday night's struggle and a crowd, comparable to softball turnouts of old days when 800 and 1,000 fans at a game was not unusual, should be assured.

In case of a play-off match, you would have to stretch things considerably to choose between Huber and Cooler. Both teams will have had equivalent season records and will have held an even split in their two game series

But, if you want to maintain your rank as a high-class forecaster, you have to select a winner. Two of Marion's leading softball figures who have been involved in diamond affairs for a long time and who should know what they're spouting about when it comes to softball, pick Huber One of these men is John Clark, genial if not slightly "totalitarian" Epworth skipper, who says about the "who will win" inquiry, "Huber looks a little better than Cooler and should take Universal if it comes down to a play-off game. Incidentally, I hope my Epworth bunch, after they win the Sunday school title, will have a chance to play either Huber or Cooler. That would really be a good game."

Bob Scott, manager of the Commercial Steel team which has met both Huber and Cooler this year (and been beaten soundly by both) is not so outspoken as Mr. Clark but thinks Huber will be the team to finish on top as he says, "Up to Wednesday night's game I was sure Huber would win the title but I'm not so certain now. However, I think Huber might have a little better all-around lineup than Cooler. Cooler has the best infield in city softball today (Joe Darnell, Atkinson, Reid, and Hart). However, Huber has the leading outfield (Myron Gibson, Shumate and Pete Howison) and a little better pitcher, Millisor"

There are a couple of reasons why Huber should win but remember, Universal has just as many staunch backers with as substantial reasons for Cooler copping the pennant. However, this controversy will be officially settled only when the final out is made this season

17-Year-Olds in O.S.U. Grid Preview at Stadium Today

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O, July 23 — A bunch of 17-year-old athletes today present a preview of Ohio State university's 1943 football picture.

The under-draft-age gridders, who must form the bulk of the Buck grid machine during the coming season tangle in a 60-minute intra-squad scrimmage climaxing four weeks of summer practice drills.

Buck Coach Paul Brown said the game would "by no means be a finished affair"

"These 17-year-olds have been crammed with a lot of football in a short time," he explained, adding:

"But it will give the fans a chance to 'preview' the lads who must make up a bulk of the '43 team."

From last year's Big Ten and national championship squads, Brown will have available this fall about a half dozen veterans who have been rejected for military service because of minor physical defects

The Red-White tiff is expected to develop into a contest of speedy backfields The Red secondary boasts two of the fastest youngsters in the state in Ernie Parks, former Canton McKinley High school Negro star, and Dean Sensanbaugher, 185-pound triple threater from Uhrichsville.

The Whites, too, offer a stiff powerful pair in Bob Hecker, 162-pound back from Olmstead Falls, and Matt Brown, another erstwhile Canton McKinley ball toter.

Four of the eight starting backfielders are from Canton McKinley

The line-ups:

THE REDS

Ends — Ernie Plank of Bexley and Bud Kessler of Worthington; tackles—Jack Swartzbaugh of Toledo and Ray Stackhouse of Dayton; guards—Wid Miller of Wapakoneta and Ronny Heffinger of Napoleon; center—Howard Teifke of Fremont; backs—Warren Amling of Pana, Ill, Sensanbaugher, Parks and Glen Oliver of Columbus.

THE WHITES

Ends — Gene Clark of Columbus and Arden Roberson of Ada; tackles—John Canfield of Millersport and Dick Meinke of Elyria; guards—Jack Redd and Frank Parenti of Dayton; center — Bill Dunivant of Cuyahoga Falls; backs—Red Williams of Canton; Jasper Harris of Canton, Hecker and Brown.

BOUDREAU SMILES THROUGH WHISKERS, TRIBE WINS AGAIN

Jim Bagby Pitches 2 and 1 Victory for Ninth Win of Season.

By The Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA, July 23 — Manager Lou Boudreau smiled through his whiskers today as his Cleveland Indians won their fourth straight victory and his pitching staff boasted two nine-game winners.

Jim Bagby pitched a 2 to 1 triumph over the Athletics last night for his ninth victory against as many defeats, pairing with Lefty Al Smith to lead the Tribe hurling staff.

The Tribe's fourth consecutive triumph was Boudreau's fourth day with the prolonged hirsute growth since he and Coaches George Susce, Del Baker and Burt Shotton vowed they'd not shave until the Indians lost. Ironically, the Philadelphia loss was charged to Orrie Arntzen former hurler for the bearded cult of the House of David.

True to form with Bagby pitching, the Redskins gave no impressive hitting exhibition and were limited to five hits by Arntzen. The A's hit safely seven umes.

Mel Harder takes the mound today in the third and last game of the series in his first start since he was injured last May 8. Don Black is slated to work for the A's.

BUCKY RIGHT AGAIN, REDS READY TO GO

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, July 23 — Now that Bucky Walters is right again, maybe the Cincinnati Reds can do something.

Johnny Vander Meer tries to make that official this afternoon in the final of the four-game series with the Brooklyn Dodgers. Whitlow Wyatt is the opposition.

Bucky was right last night and the Dodgers were wrong by 5 to 0 Bucky walked three of the first five men to face him, but that was a hold-over from his last game and not a foretaste of this one.

He turned the steam hose on the Dodgers inning after inning and when they came to the end, they had three hits to show for a short hour and 28 minutes.

The Reds chopped out their modest pile of runs in an unostentatious manner. Lonnie Frey bunted safely in the first and went to third on Curt Davis' wild throw and scored on a fielder's choice. Albie Glossop fumbled a roller in the second and a sacrifice and a single by Walters made another run.

Gee Walker doubled and scored on Max Marshall's single in the fifth. Eric Tipton singled, Eddie Miller sacrificed, Ray Mueller doubled, and Glossop fumbled again for two more in the sixth.

Milwaukee Brewers in First Place Today

The Milwaukee Brewers are in first place in the American Association again, thanks to their little Joe Berry who hurled his 11th consecutive victory last night. At the same time Indianapolis was losing to Minneapolis and dropped to second place.

Berry weathered a four-run first inning outburst by Toledo for a 10 to 5 decision over the Mudhens.

Indianapolis ran into three-hit pitching and succumbed to Bill Lefebvre and the Minneapolis Millers, 1 to 0.

Third place Columbus muffed a chance to move in on the leaders by dividing a double header with Kansas City. The Red Birds lost the opener, 3 to 2, but took the second, 6 to 2.

Mel Deutsch pitched Louisville's Colonels to a 5 to 0 win over St. Paul.

Canadian Duo Wins Tag-Team Match in Rough Armory Fight

Once again the smooth-functioning Canadian duo of Larry "Babe" Kasaboski and Rene LaBell clicked effectively against a team of rough and grumble wrestlers last night Buck Lipscomb of Indianapolis and Carl Von Lehman of New York City, in a sizzling tag team match, feature of Les Fishbaugh's card at the West Church street Armory Jack Reeder of Jackson, Miss., was another rough-house ace he pulverized Rufus Jones, colored Atlanta whiz in the semi-final.

Last week Kasaboski and LaBell topped the European pair of Fred Carone and Lehman Last night's affair was almost an exact duplicate of that match, except for the presence of the sturdy 187-pound figure of Lipscomb in place of Carone's broad expanse

Uphill Battle

The two popular Canadian lads had to make an uphill battle of it in the tag team bout as the 190-pound Lehman and Lipscomb copped the first fall Kasoboski was pinned by the strutting Lehman after 13 minutes by the use of painful back-breaker, Reeder's pet hold. La Bell followed Larry two minutes later as he was nearly crushed by a body press applied to Lipscomb Incidentally, the Indianapolis heavy used a little specialty known as the neck-choke on the side.

Kasaboski and Rene were two vengeful rassiers as they climbed into the squared circle for the second fall. Shortly after the bell clanked, a free-for-all ensued with all four wrestlers flailing and kicking to heart's content Finally after a minute of these wild-man proceedings, the ref induced one representative from each side to retire to the customary spot out of the ring Kasaboski used the same airplane spin with which he felled ample Fred Carone last week to dispense with Von Lehman after 11 minutes had elapsed in the second fall. The German-sprung count was far too groggy to actually know whether he was in a wrestling match or back in Hitler's Berlin. LaBell, spurred on by the fine showing of his cohort, overwhelmed Lipscomb with a back-flip and a body press at the 12-minute mark.

Third Fall

The third and decisive fall was taken by the two Canadians but only after Lipscomb and Lehman had used everything in and out of the books to swing the fight in their favor LaBell pinned Lehman in this fall after nine minutes with an impressive body press. About 10 seconds later, Kasaboski body-pressed Lipscomb also, but only after Rene had proferred great assistance with his favorite foot-kick.

The 200-pound Reeder got revenge from Jones, who decisioned the Mississippi eye-gouger a month ago when Jack was in the garb of the Purple Phantom The black-coated southern neck-breaker, who tips the beams at 195, unmasked Reeder at the conclusion of their memorable match, to reveal the identity of the mysterious and often victorious Phantom

The Mississippi back-drop as used by Reeder to take a first fall from Jones after two falls. This cruising specialty consists of picking up your opponent and basting him against the corner, leaving him half senseless if not less.

Head-Butt No Good

Jones employed his pet, the head-butt, to force Reeder into submission after 13 minutes in the second fall. Reeder tried to use Rufus in the head out from the colored gentleman's bean was too iron-clad to do any good. Instead, Jack was rudely bumped onto the canvas himself

A simple little number called the Boston crab was the hold used by Reeder to win the fight after the 10-minute mark in the third. However, before Reeder had won the bout, he was a man in very-too-excellent shape. Jones this fall, had slammed Jack to the mat and perching over his prostrate and massive form proceeded to whale away with his clenched paddy at will.

Y BOARD HEARS AREA OFFICIAL

Changes in Organization and Policy Outlined; Considered for Use Here.

[illegible], associate secretary [illegible] Ohio-West Virginia [illegible] Y.M.C.A. council, led the [illegible] directors of the local [illegible] monthly meeting last [illegible] discussion of recent [illegible] Y.M.C.A. work and [illegible].

The discussion was conducted in a informal manner by Mr. [illegible] who enlightened board [illegible] to improvements and [illegible] Y organizations and [illegible] other cities. Possibilities of introducing such new [illegible] as suggested by Mr. Session, in the local Y set up, were considered by the board.

Following Mr. Session's address the board voted on proposals of regulating and scheduling of three second-story [illegible] Y building for women and clubs only. [illegible] are located in the [illegible] corner of the building, [illegible] formerly occupied by the Red Cross.

Remodeling Under Way

The board decided to delegate the responsibility of remodeling the rooms to the executive council of women's organizations of the Y. Representatives of the three sororities and two other feminine groups that meet regularly at the Y comprise the council.

Already, according to Earl N. Hale, executive secretary of the Y.M.C.A., the council has started redecorating and refurnishing of the three rooms. This remodeling is expected to be completed shortly. At that time, the schedule for use of the rooms by the five women's organizations will go into effect.

In order to allow ample time for the guest speaker to present a well-rounded picture of Y.M.C.A. organization trends, board members decided to postpone voting on an amendment to the Y constitution until the August meeting. This proposal, calling for the formation of an advisory board of the Y.M.C.A., was made at the June meeting. By-laws of the constitution stipulate voting on an amendment must not be held until at least a month following the proposal. The board definitely agreed to cast their votes either for or against the adoption of any such board at next month's meeting.

Advisory Board Proposal

According to Mr. Hale, this advisory board would consist of men interested in Y.M.C.A. work who are not members of the regular board of directors. The main purpose of the advisory body would be to shoulder much of the responsibility of Y financial, membership and organization affairs formerly assumed by the directors' board. In this way, Y officials believe problems and disputes in the local Y could be dealt with more fairly and open-mindedly.

Preceding Mr. Sessions' talk and the business part of the board meeting, dinner was served in the Y-indus room.

Depot Team Beats Excavator

Engineers Overcome Jinx To Hand Marion Team 8-6 Defeat; Score First Victory in Six Games.

The currently high-riding Huber Threshers had better be at top strength, for their all-important game with the Marion Engineer Depot Aug. 3 for the east-of-town engineers have proved they are no longer a soft touch for any Industrial league softball team. With a practically new lineup composed of many recently-arrived soldiers who are competent diamond performers the Depot nabbed its first loop win of the year as it repulsed a belated rally of General Excavator to win, 8 to 6, at Garfield park Thursday night.

The Engineers had been bullied by every other Industrial league team before last night, having been thoroughly defeated five straight times. The third-place Excavator outfit handed the Depot one of its worst lickings in the first round, 16 to 1. However, that was in the lean days when the Engineers had an enthusiastic but hardly top-flight ball club. The Depot win pushes the Diggers further back into the forgotten class of Industrial teams with two wins and four losses.

Davis, Engineer left fielder, doubled with a man on first in the first of the seventh inning to seal the Depot's initial triumph. Parcher was issued a pass by Paul Sycks, once a leading Industrial pitcher, to begin the seventh. Catcher Reiger bounded an infield roller, which resulted in catching Parcher at second but leaving Reiger on first with a fielder's choice. Then came Davis' two bagger.

Excavator in the sixth stanza had almost knotted the game after the Depot had shot out in front, 3 to 0, at the end of the first frame. Thompson, short centerfielder, initiated the Digger sixth, by drawing a walk. Pitcher Sycks then blasted a base knock, tallying Thompson from first. Ray Hecker was passed and Hopkins, second baseman, shot a hot bounder which was muffed, allowing sufficient time for even a Lombardi to race home. Pitcher Sharkns of the Depot then settled down and retired the next three Excavator batters in order.

Wilson, Depot second sacker, was tops with the stick, banging out three for four. Parcher, Engineer first baseman, found Sycks enough to his liking to get two for three.

Score by Innings:

Engineer Depot	3	0	3	0	1	—8	13	2
Gen. Excavator	0	0	3	0	1	2	—6	6	1

Masura, Sharkns and Reiger; Paul Sycks and Somerlot.

Removal of Coffee from Rationing Likely

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 23—Removal of coffee from the ration list is imminent, government food officials said today.

No final date for lifting of rationing has been set, but these officials said an announcement was expected to be made by the office of price administration within the next few days.

Recommendations for removal of rationing have been presented to top OPA and war food administration (WFA) officials and action was said to await only their formal approval.

Coffee has been under ration since last November. Imports have been running in excess of consumption recently.

County Relief Office Ordered Discontinued

BUCYRUS, July 23—Decreasing need for relief work in Crawford county brought a discontinuance this week of the county relief administrator's office, through action by the board of county commissioners.

Relief rolls now dropped to 16 cases makes it inadvisable to expend $275 a month for administration, commissioners said today in explanation of the action. A part time worker will be hired to take care of the work within a few days, they stated. A further reduction in cases will be made shortly, Lawrence Heinlen, chairman of the board said.

OUTLINE PLANS FOR SOFTBALL

Managers Agree on Umpire Assignments and Other Questions.

Local men, long followers of softball, today expressed astonishment at the spirit of congeniality which prevailed at a meeting of managers of the city's league teams at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

They pointed out that in other years most of the rival managers were ready to fight at the drop of a bat when it came to a close game or a questionable decision rendered by the umpire. However, last night the pilots conducted a friendly and sometimes jovial discussion on games this year, merits of certain players, and the quality of play in general this year. Softball officials expressed satisfaction and elation at the cooperation and agreement shown by the team bosses.

All pilots present were in accordance as to certain necessary changes in the softball system for the remainder of this year. The first and major point brought out concerned a change in the status of umpires for all loop games for the rest of the season.

Assignment Schedule

Managers decided to give regular assignments to the umpires of the remaining games. Marion Mewhorter, secretary of the softball commission, who was in charge of the meeting was appointed to contact all men who have officiated in softball contest thus far to inquire as to their availability as umps in the future. Mewhorter then plans to draw up a regular assignment sheet for umpires for games in all three city leagues.

The skippers were certain adoption of this pre-game assignment system would remedy the sad situation in early season games when such radical measures as drafting spectators was necessitated by absence of regular umpires. However, the officials were not to be blamed for they were muddled as to what game they were supposd to be calling balls and strikes. This was primarily due to the failure of softball officials to systematize umpiring scheduling.

Tournament Approved

The managers also unanimously favored the plan of a year-end tournament for all city loop teams in place of the usual Little World Series. It was definitely agreed that the series would not be satisfactory this year as there were not enough softball teams to stimulate any interest in it.

Ending the season at the scheduled time was another point where the managers were in 100 per cent agreement. They affirmed there would be no holdovers of games and that all postponed tilts would be replayed at the earliest possible open date.

The skippers vowed they would not schedule any out-of-town games for their teams until the schedule for the year-end tournament had been determined by the softball commission. An understanding was made that if any league teams secured games with foreign teams on the tournament dates, they would be out of luck and could not play in the tourney.

Another Meeting Set

Mewhorter announced today a follow-up meeting of the softball commission will be held next Thursday to take official action on the suggestions made by the managers last night.

Probably number one on the list of business of the commission meeting, the first since the season opened on June 1, will be to set up as scheduled for the year-end tournament. Entry fees, eligibility requirements, and other details in connection with the tourney will be worked out by the commission.

The head men of the city diamond outfits voted to set the date for the Industrial league championship play-off game, if there is one, on Thursday, Aug. 12, at Lincoln park. End of regular season play for Industrial teams is on tap for Aug. 10.

Cooler topped Huber 3 to 2 Wednesday night to advance within a half game of the league-leading Threshers. If Universal wins its two remaining games and Huber beats the Engineer Depot, the play-off game will be a reality.

Clatter of Tanks Through Palermo Dirge for Enemy

By DANIEL DE LUCE
AP War Correspondent

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 23—In the hoarse roar of tanks and the crunching tread of American infantry filing through Palermo today, the free world can hear the opening strains of a dirge for axis power over Europe.

Palermo was more than the sixth largest Italian city.

It was one of the queenly ports of the Tyrrhenian sea.

It was the civilized heart of Sicily.

It was shielded from attack as heavily as almost any base on the Italian peninsula itself.

What happened to Palermo I believe can happen to any other Italian city in the weeks and months to come.

The Sicilian campaign proved these things:

The Italian army fights no more bravely or skillfully at home than it did abroad.

War weariness and discouragement run through virtually all classes of the Italian nation.

American and British generals know as much about lightning war today as their German teachers.

Properly mixed in with veterans, American and British divisions that never have seen battle before can be hurled into action on at least a par with experienced enemy armies—thanks to a training program that kept pace with the latest lessons of the 1943 war program.

Amphibious warfare, the most difficult and exacting type of all, has become an allied specialty, in which thousands of ships and warplanes and hundreds of thousands of troops are coordinated with mathematical precision in accordance with the military principle of hitting with overwhelming, concentrated force.

The allied command again has demonstrated that wherever it sends its land spearheads it makes sure first of air cover and a secure supply line.

The allies have all the essentials for the conquest of Europe.

175 AXIS PLANES LOST

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, July 23—Allied air forces shot down 175 enemy aircraft during the first week of the invasion of Sicily and dropped nearly 8,000,000 pounds of bombs on the island's targets, air force tabulations showed today.

CO-VICTIM OF 1874 ROSS KIDNAP CASE STRICKEN

Walter L. Ross, Prominent on Wall Street, Dies.

By The Associated Press

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y., July 23—Walter L. Ross, 74, co-victim in one of the nation's most publicized and mysterious kidnapings 69 years ago, later a prominent Wall Street figure, died yesterday after a long illness.

It was on July 1, 1874, that two men in a buggy stopped in front of the Ross home in Philadelphia, Pa., and offered Walter, and his four-year-old brother Charlie, candy and a visit to a circus. After a short ride, the men gave Walter a quarter to go into a store and buy candy.

They drove away with Charlie, who was never seen again. The boy's father, a grocer, later received a demand for $20,000 ransom, but was unable to raise the money. Although thousands of persons offered assistance, no further demands for ransom were made nor were any negotiations begun.

The deceased man headed Walter L. Ross & Co., and retired in 1927 after selling his New York Stock Exchange seat for the then record price of $270,000.

In medieval warfare, armies by agreement never engaged in active campaigning during winter.

SAYS 'MARVEL AGE' REMOTE

By The United Press

PASADENA, Cal.—Prof. W. H. Peckering of the California Institute of Technology warns the public against expecting a world of super-development immediately after the war as a result of the progress being made in electronics. There will be some, he concedes but the "age of marvels," he insists, "is still remote."

BLU Network Sale Reports Still Heard

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 23—Continuing persistent rumors of the sale of the Blu network now have reached the stage of almost daily reports. So far none has met any verification.

The coast to coast network is for sale to meet the stipulation of the federal communications commission against common ownership of more than one chain, but the best available comment is that no one has made a concrete bid as yet.

Announced as a program "exposing the dangers of race hatred," a special half-hour documentary broadcast is to be inserted in its Saturday schedule by CBS as an "Open Letter to the American People." Wendell Willkie is to deliver a postscript. It will go on at 7 p.m. in place of Man Behind the Gun and be repeated for the Pacific Coast at 9.

SELECTS HIT PEAK PRICES

But Many Leaders Fail To Exhibit Power To Get Ahead.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 23—Scattered utility preferreds, rails and industrial specialties performed on the upside in today's stock market, a number touching 3 to 6-year peaks, but many leaders continued to exhibit rising timidity.

The news from Sicily, another batch of generally pleasing earnings and dividends, together with the presence of large amounts of idle investment funds provided some bullish inspiration. Doubts regarding domestic developments, however, were given as the excuse for lack of purchasing vigor.

At best levels for 1943 or longer, with gains of fractions to around 4 points, were Chesapeake & Ohio, White Motors, Pepsi-Cola, Austin Nichols common and "A" preferreds of Electric Power & Light and American Power & Light.
